Just an Even Break.
If Bryan Knew It.
Playing With Dynamite.
Seven in 56 Minutes.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

WALL STREET, puzzled, had attacks of nerves yesterday and the day before. Usually high finance expects to elect the Republican nominated. In case of accident, the safest possible Democrat.

Now "The Street" sees one of its biggest men Democratic national chairman. Finance and speculation, most timid things on earth, next to a sick white rabbit and a soft-shell crab, fear "a political war in financial circles."

NO SUCH fear is justified. Mr Raskob is a warm friend of Gov. Smith, and, like the Governor, is a member of the Catholic faith. He means to see to it that the Governor "has an even break."

And Mr. Raskob's idea of an even break is no mere "50-50."

THE Democratic party discovers that Wall street is no terrible wolf after all—just a nice old dog Tray.

Imagine William Jennings Bryan if he came back and learned that the Wall street demon had made a Democratic national chairman of the financial head of a FOUR THOUSAND MILLION DOLLAR CORPORATION!

Also imagine W. J. Bryan hearing of a Democratic campaign based on a war against prohibition. But you couldn't imagine that, neither could Bryan.

SPECULATORS refused comfort, however, and many stocks went to new low prices, General Motors selling in blocks of 10,000 shares was hammered down 11 points to 182¾.

Once more let the speculators remember that selling short is dangerous. Selling short a stock like General Motors, that might go to the roof, is playing with dynamite.

MR. SLOAN, president of General Motors, tells advertising men at Detroit that his company expects to sell next year 1,700,000 cars for about two billion dollars. That is what you might call a business.

SOME time between midnight and 1 o'clock this morning the electric chair at Eddyville, Ky., was to kill seven men—three black, four white. The three Negroes were to die after the white men, perhaps because politeness requires that the whites pass ahead of the others.

EIGHT minutes is allotted for each killing, just time enough to get a man into the room, tie him down, finish and remove him.

Eight minutes, and what kind of eternity after it? The men would like to know that.

Will there be separate compartments and rules for the black men and white where they are going?

NOGUCHI, admirable Japanese scientist, killed by yellow fever while studying that disease in Africa, leaves everything to his wife. Twelve thousand dollars is the total fortune of the dead man. He did not work for money, but for a name. And his name is honored everywhere on earth. He succeeded.

WHAT follows interests druggists, and all that have teeth or take baths, and especially those interested in that schoolgirl complexion.

There is to be a merger of Colgate and Company with Palmolive Peet Company. Thes concerns do a business of $100,000,000 a year, which proves that we are as clean as we are rich.

THIS nation still has money to lend. In six months Europe has borrowed one billion, fifty-three millions from us, and there is plenty more where that came from.

The United States has an income of one hundred billions a year, ten billions more than it cos[illegible] to live. So we lend.

Some day we shall wish we had invested our billions nearer home.

ONE cheerful feature in our national business is our trade of almost two thousand million dollars with Latin America.

Before the war our South American trade was only $350,000,000. And we have more than a billion invested in South America, against $100,000,000 in 1914.

ITALY, in memory of her victory over Austria, unveils a monument which originally bore this inscription: "From This Point We Have Driven the Barbarian Language, Laws and Arts."

Mussolini has changed "Barbarian" to "Foreign," but still Austria is offended.

FOR three thousand years "barbarian" has been a word of deep insult along the Mediterranean. Everybody outside of Greece was a barbarian, to the Greeks, of whom none could legally marry an outside woman. That caused all of Jason's trouble, after he brought back his highstrung barbarian wife, who had helped him get what he wanted. For details that would make even Mussolini shudder, see Euripides.

MEXICO'S LINDY OUT 17 HOURS, UNSEEN

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(INS.)—Ideal flying weather was reported by the local weather bureau today all along the Gulf Coast, the route probably taken by Capt. Emilio Carranza on his non-stop flight from New York to Mexico City.

The Mexican flyer was expected to reach the vicinity of Galveston, Tex., around noon today. He was not seen by New Orleans observers.

ON COMPASS COURSE

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—No word came back to the Long Island flying fields today from Capt. Emilio Carranza, "Mexico's Lindy," who slipped away quietly last evening on a non-stop flight to his home in Mexico City.

After the first few storm-marked hours the watchers hardly expected him to return, but they were somewhat surprised when 17 hours passed without a report of his being sighted along his 2,400-mile route. They pointed out, however, the intention of the Mexican "good will" flier to follow a compass course, which may have carried him away from most cities.

After his surprise move in taking off after announcing that the flight was again postponed, the personnel at Mitchel Field settled back to wait news of Carranza, who had been their guest for a week.

The Captain arrived in the United States nearly a month ago on an attempted non-stop flight from the Mexican capital to Washington, in return for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's flight to that country. Capt. Carranza, however, was forced down in North Carolina.

NO MORE MARATHON DANCES!—CLARK

Public Safety Director James M. Clark decided today that Pittsburgh has seen its last marathon dance. To suit the action to the decision, he refused a permit to Promoter Milton D. Crandall and John Hernon for a four-day marathon in Motor Square Garden.

"I'm sick and tired of these dances," Clark revealed, "and I'll issue no more permits. I'll not see one of the dancers drop dead and be blamed for it myself. If any promoters get any more permits they'll have to mandamus me in court and win their case."

Crandall started the marathon dance craze five months ago and, with Hernon, returned this week from New York, where his Madison Square Garden marathon was stopped by police after it had run for three weeks.

BOY DROWNS IN FALL INTO SWOLLEN CREEK

BURGETTSTOWN, Pa., July 13.—Reaching for floating sticks in swollen Raccoon Creek late yesterday, Frank Ocepek, Jr., 8, fell into the stream and was drowned. Firemen of this district were seeking the body today. The lad was playing with other children at the time.

FIVE MORE SNATCHED FROM ICE FLOE

International News Service.

MOSCOW, July 13.—Having made two memorable rescues in one day, the Soviet icebreaker Krassin was today retracing its course southward in a search for a third group of men marooned on the Arctic wastelands.

While proceeding to the rescue of the five men encamped in the "red tent" on the ice-floes, after having saved Capt. Alberto Mariano and Capt. Fillipo Zappi from lingering deaths by starvation, members of the Krassin's crew sighted the third group on the ice near Foyne Island and signalled to them that they would be rescued after the five men led by Lieut. Viglieri were saved.

The identity of this third group can only be conjectured at. It is possible that these men were Capt. Zora, the Alpine Chasseur, and his two Norwegian companions, who set out with a dog-sled to search for survivors of the ill-fated Italia expedition.

AMUNDSEN PARTY?

It was also regarded as likely that these men were remnants of the party of six men who were carried aloft with the gas bag of the Italia

See Their Mother Drown

In the presence of her two children, Mrs. Helen Dalton, 27, of 310 Corry avenue, Braddock, was drowned while bathing in the Rock Bottom pool, Brinton road, Braddock township, today.

Mrs. Dalton, with her daughter, Alice, 5, and Thomas, 4, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Thelma Dalton, rear 108 Corry avenue, Braddock, and other relatives, made up a swimming party which went to the pool shortly after noon.

It is believed Mrs. Dalton was seized with cramps. Searchers were seeking to recover her body late today.

Getting Romantic

PEGGY HOPKINS JOYCE

The "most romantic proposal of all" is now Peggy Hopkins Joyce's. The Earl of Northesk, whose American Follies girl wife, Jessica Brown, is suing him for divorce, has proposed to Peggy and has been accepted. "We were dining," says Peggy, "and the lights were low. David (Northesk) asked the orchestra to play 'When I Marry You.' Then he leaned across and whispered, 'When, Peggy?' I said, 'Yes.' We are very happy." The lord will be Peggy's sixth husband.

STORM FLOODS MINE, 700 OUT OF WORK

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., July 13.—(AP.)—Several hundred men working at the Webb mine, 18 miles south of here, were out of employment today and damage estimated at $500,000 was caused when the Wegee Creek, laden with waters of heavy rains, overflowed its banks and flooded the valley last night.

The Webb mine was flooded, damaging much of the property and sweeping 30 loaded mine cars before it. Twenty-five automobiles at the mine were caught by the flood as the water swept through the valley, partially destroying them. A picket camp established near the edge of the mine properties was destroyed and the occupants forced to flee.

RAILROADS DAMAGED

The Ohio River and Western Railroad was one of the heavy sufferers of the flood damage, with 10 of its bridges reported swept down the stream.

One man was drowned, several others injured, railroad and high-

SEARS HER AT DANCE

One girl threw a bottle of carbolic acid in the face of another on a Castle Shannon dance floor last night in an argument over possession of "the boy friend," according to a report made to the county detectives today.

Clara McAllister, of 818 East Ohio street, was the victim. Her face was burned. Today she swore out an information against Sophie Mayers, of 904 Western avenue, as the assailant. She said she was dancing with Miss Mayers' "boy friend" at Linden Grove when Sophie raced onto the floor and splashed the acid on her face.

Jennie Rezlman, of 818 East Ohio street, appeared with Miss McAllister before Alderman George Anderson and said a few drops of the acid had splashed on her.

Miss McAllister said she had gone to the dance with the girl who later attacked her.

"Just Kids Club" Artist on Air Tonight

Ad Carter, creator of "Just Kids" and the "Just Kids Safety Club," which has 2,000,000 members in the United States and Canada, 45,000 of them in Pittsburgh, will talk to the members over Station KDKA, Westinghouse, at 5:35 p. m. today. Mr. Carter, who is spending this week in Pittsburgh as the guest of The Sun-Telegraph, will tell, from the Fort Pitt Hotel studio of KDKA how the club started and how the large number of "Just Kid Safety Club" members in Pittsburgh makes it impossible for him to see them all in person.

SMITH GAINS AS VOTE GROWS

Passed the 28,000 mark!

Which, in straw vote language, means that The Sun-Telegraph test ballot on the Hoover or Smith for President question has obtained 28,000 votes.

Whereas it was assumed yesterday that folks around the B. & O. R. R. station were inclined towards Hoover on account of a three-to-two vote for the Republican candidate Wednesday, yesterday Smith edged ahead at this location, registering 72 votes against Hoover's 63. Wilkinsburg continued to favor Hoover with a two-to-one vote.

There is going to be an interesting experiment in straw vote taking tomorrow, when a voting machine will be stationed near the teeing-off position at a golf course. The question to be decided is whether the lure of the links is stronger than the pull of politics. At any rate, while Mr. and Mrs. Golfer are waiting to tee off for a round of birdies and eagles, they can practice the serious art of casting a ballot for their favorite candidate.

Results recorded by the machines yesterday follow:

Hamilton Senate Sec'y

HARRISBURG, July 13.—(AP.)—Senator Schantz, of Allentown, today appointed A. Boyd Hamilton, secretary to Gov. Fisher, secretary of the State Senate to succeed the late W. Harry Baker.

Frank J. Gorman, of Philadelphia, a member of the Pennsylvania Securities Commission, was appointed by Gov. Fisher as secretary to the governor to succeed Hamilton.

PEACOCK DIES—BODY HERE

Funeral arrangements for Alexander R. Peacock, former partner of Andrew Carnegie, were announced here today. He will be buried in Homewood Cemetery only a short distance from the site of the former Peacock mansion.

Peacock, who with Charles Schwab and other associates of Carnegie in the 90's made their millions, died yesterday in New York at the age of 65 years.

The body of the millionaire, who was known as one of the most eccentric millionaires of Pittsburgh, was brought here last night.

Many fanciful stories have been woven about the life of this millionaire. One of them tells how he became connected with Carnegie. Peacock was a clerk in a New York department store when Mrs. Carnegie, attracted by his Scotch accent, learned that his birthplace, Dunfermline, Scotland, was also the birthplace of Carnegie.

Shortly afterward Peacock became connected with the Carnegie interests and amassed a fortune which was estimated to be somewhere in the 10 or 20 millions.

Peacock's early business history dates back to the time when he was employed in the credit department of the Homestead Steel Works. Through placing a large order for the firm, he was promoted to the sales department where he began his sensational rise.

With his wealth, Peacock built Peacock mansion, which was once one of the showplaces of the city. For the last 15 years he had been living in New York.

When a butler served him a cold storage egg one morning he ordered construction started on a $70,000 chicken farm, so that he might always have fresh eggs. He also constructed a well-stocked trout pool on his grounds so that he might have fresh fish when he wished.

A story is told that when he discovered an employe in his office had squandered about $25,000 of Mr. Peacock's money in gambling and drinking, he called the offender into his office and soundly thrashed him. Again when he was able to secure only upper berths in a crowded train at San Francisco he hired a special train in which to return home.

When the United States Steel Corporation absorbed the Carnegie company Mr. Peacock branched out on his own account, but was

This "Just Kids Safety Club," which has in Pittsburgh alone almost 50,000 members enrolled by The Sun-Telegraph, does not confine itself to "Just Kids." Mrs. Ad Carter, wife of its originator, has pledged Mayor Charles Kline.

SAFETY!

Ad Carter, who draws "Just Kids," the sparkling comic strip appearing every day in The Sun-Telegraph, has been in Pittsburgh all this week in the interest of universal safety. Ad, of course, is working most with the youngsters and in many sections of Pittsburgh he has had admiring groups about him. Here, he draws "Pat Finnegan," one of his strip characters. Every "Safety Club" member promises him "to look up and down before crossing streets."

CHIEF

You would think a Chief of Police would be the most careful man in town, wouldn't you? Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh will be now, because he has just taken the pledge from Carter. Supt. Walsh above, you see, admits that he is careful. So there.

EVERYBODY

Mrs. Carter is as active as her husband. After initiating the Mayor, she skipped over to the district attorney's office and initiated Samuel H. Gardner. From now on, he is going to be careful, too.

way traffic obstructed, rivers swollen and much property damage done by torrential rains. Lightning struck several buildings and two coal mines in the Rayland district will suspend operations temporarily because of damage done by the storm.

Traffic was suspended on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad on account of washouts.

Rayland and Connorville suffered most on the Ohio side of the river. Two hillside homes in Rayland were reported washed away.

WHEELING HARD HIT

WHEELING, W. Va., July 13.—(AP.)—Wheeling and towns along the lower Ohio valley today were recovering from the worst storm in 12 years. At least 2,000 men were estimated to be idle as a result of industrial plants and mines being flooded when small streams, swollen by a terrific rain, overflowed.

Moundsville bore the brunt of the storm, the loss there being estimated at $200,000. The United States Stamping Company plant was flooded, with a resultant damage of $50,000. Homes were washed from their foundations.

Only one loss of life was reported, that of Albert Lawther, a Negro, who was drowned in the flood waters near Wellsburg.

Lemoyne Vaughn, Fordham College football recruit, was so badly burned on the right arm when struck by lightning that physicians said his athletic career was at an end.

Curse Blamed in 3 Zion Deaths

COLONIST SEES WRATH OVER 'HOLY LAND' SALE

WAUKEGAN, Ill., July 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. John Edgar, Sr., of Zion, Ill., staunch follower of the late Dr. John Alexander Dowie, founder of Zion City, believes "the curse of God Almighty is upon the land Voliva has sold to Bartlett."

Wilbur Glenn Volvia is overseer of Zion. Bartlett is the real estate dealer who recently purchased a section of land belonging to Zion.

William Lumsen was killed while at work on the Bartlett sub-division yesterday. Mrs. Edgar said Lumsen was the third man to be killed there since the land was sold.

These deaths, she said, show the existence of a curse on the property.

Several other followers of Dr. Dowie have maintained that all the orignal Zion City site is "Holy Land," and that it should not be sold to outsiders nor voted outside the city limits as has been done in recent years.

5 OF NOBILE'S CREW SAVED

when its gondola crashed to the ground on the morning of May 25.

A third possibility is that these men are Capt. Roald Amundsen and his companions, who have not been heard from since leaving Tromsoe, Norway, in a seaplane almost four weeks ago to search the northlands.

Few details of the rescue of the five men in the "red tent" group, Lieut. Alfredo Viglieri, Prof. F. Behounek, Felice Trojani, Giuseppe Biagi and Natale Ceccioni, are yet available.

According to wireless reports from the Krassin, the rescue was effected at 9 o'clock last night. Prof. Samoyolovich, in command of the Soviet rescue expedition, did not reveal what the condition of the rescued men was.

When Lieut. Lundborg, the Swedish aviator marooned with the five men for 13 days, left them, all five were in a terrible physical state. Two were suffering from pneumonia. Two others were suffering from high fevers. Ceccioni, who suffered a broken leg when the gondola of the Italia crashed, was in the worst condition of all.

Mariano and Zappi were today below decks aboard the Krassin being tenderly cared for by the crew after their harrowing experiences. On the deck of the vessel, the body of their companion, Dr. Finn Malmgren, the famous Swedish explorer and scientist who led them across the ice, lay draped in the tattered flags which his companions waved to the Russian aviator Chuchnovsky, and thus were saved.

THIRTEEN DAYS FOODLESS

For 13 days Mariano and Zappi had been without food. They had almost given up hope when sighted by the Russian aviator. Malmgren, who although only 33 was a veteran of the Arctic and had crossed the North Pole twice with Gen. Nobile, had succumbed a month before. When he started out with his companions he was suffering from injuries which he underestimated, and they resulted in his death.

Mariano is in a serious condition. Both his legs were frozen and it is feared gangrene may set in. He is 30 years old, acted as the pilot of the Italia and was second in command to Nobile. Zappi, who is 32, was the navigator of the ill-fated dirigible.

Air Crash Kills 4 in Britain

CROYDON, England, July 13.—(AP.)—Two women and two men were burned to death in the crash of an airplane at Purley today. One of the men was A. Hall, aeronautical inspection director of the Croydon Airdrome.

The pilot was badly injured and sent to the hospital. A passenger escaped with slight hurts.

The plane was seen to dive and then recover slightly—then dive again and crash in flames. Desperate efforts were made to get the victims free, but the fierceness of the flames prevented this.

JACKSONVILLE SCALE SPLITS MINERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 13.—(AP.)—Still in disagreement as to the union's policy in the bituminous coal suspension, the international policy committtee of the United Mine Workers of America ended its second day's session late yesterday and adjourned until today.

No official word was forthcoming on the discussion of the group, and it was learned that President John L. Lewis had requested the members not to talk to newspapermen.

Mine union officials refused to predict when an agreement might be reached.

There are not more than a hundred policy committee members present and Mr. Lewis indicated that most of them were participating in the discussion. Members said the meeting was prolonged beyond their anticipations.

The center of dispute in the committee was believed to be the Jacksonville wage agreemnt, particularly in its present application to the situation in Illinois. Operators of mines have contended that they cannot meet non-union competition if they pay the Jacksonville scale of $1.08 per ton for men on a tonnage basis and $7.50 per day for day wage men.

The meeting of the policy committee, called by President Lewis, was requested by Harry Fishwick, president of the Illinois district. Some of the Illinois miners, it is understood, believe that changed conditions in that territory have made the Jacksonville scale no longer feasible as a basis for wage negotiations, and wish to be free to form separate agreements with the operators.

Indiana and Illinois were heavily hit by the suspension of mining when the Jacksonville agreement, written in 1924, expired on April 1, 1927. Production dropped and non-union coal mines absorbed some of the markets. Many miners have remained idle for more than 15 months, while several others resumed operations under temporary agreements.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. J. Laroque Anderson and Miss Jean Peacock, and three sons, Clarence N., Rolland B. and Grant A. Peacock, all in business in this city.

MIAMI, Fla., July 13.—Friday, 13th, proved a lucky day today for Little Billie McAllister, 3½-year-old grandson of Mrs. E. C. McAllister, millionaire hotel owner.

The child, in good health and unharmed, was found in a vacant house in Coral Gables about 12 hours after he was kidnaped from his bed last night.

Early today a telephone call to the McAllister Hotel downtown informed the distraught grandmother that the child was unharmed, but it would not be returned until $8,000 was paid. The caller went so far as to give a telephone number for her to call about the ransom and a warning not to "repeat this message."

7 Killers Pay for Crime in Chair

EXECUTION MARK SET; INNOCENT, SAID ONE

International News Service.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., July 13.—Seven men, four whites and three Negroes, all convicted of murder, went to their death in the electric chair at the state penitentiary early today.

The grim parade to the execution chamber began shortly after midnight. The white men were the first to go. They were followed by the three Negroes, the last being pronounced dead at 2:25 a. m.

The men, in order of their executions were:

MILFORD LAWSON, 35, Corbin, Ky.

ORLANDO SEYMOUR, 23, Louisville.

CHARLES P. MITRA, 24, St. Louis, Mo.

HASCUE DOCKERY, 21, Harland, Ky.

WILLIAM MOORE, 48, Louisville.

JAMES HOWARD, 26, Louisville.

CLARENCE M'QUEEN, 22, of Harrison county, Ky.

The doomed men, for the most part, went bravely to their death. They spent their last hours visiting with friends and sobbing relatives. Practically all of them accepted religious consolation.

The grim ordeal, setting a new record for the number of men executed in one day, was carried out in military fashion and without disorder. Save for the wailing of heartbroken mothers and sisters as they were led away from the prison, and later the sizzling crack of the electric chair, the condemned went to their death in oppressive silence.

Three of the men killed for love, two for gain and two for revenge.

Although substantial hopes that any of the doomed men would be reprieved or granted a stay were dissipated when the Governor refused to intervene, several pathetic battles were staged yesterday and last night by lawyers and friends of two of the men.

The last thin hope for Orlando Seymour vanished shortly before midnight when County Judge A. K. Boughter refused to entertain a petition alleging that Seymour was insane, the judge ruling that he had no jurisdiction.

Another desperate last-minute fight was made in behalf of Charles Mitra, 23-year-old Italian, who, attorneys claimed, would be needed as a witness if the Court of Appeals reversed the death sentence of Carl Hord, convicted of the same crime.

Lawson, the first to go, had maintained his innocence throughout, but early resigned himself to his fate. He said he had forgiven everyone and sent a note of thanks to the Governor for kindness shown his mother.

Six-Horse Team Drags Water To Isolated

Six horses are required to pull a street sprinkling tank through the mud to provide a water supply for marooned residents of "Seldom Seen," Supt. Charles A. Hillegas of the bureau of highways and sewers disclosed today.

Recent rains have swept away bridges and boardwalks, Hillegas says, and 28 families of the district are in a bad plight. Ten cases of typhoid fever have resulted, it is believed, from drinking spring and well water and these sources have been banned by the health department.

SAUCY "MODERN" GIRL FINED $10

Miss Wanda Hugo, 22, of Welsh road, was fined $10 today for being saucy to Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court. Leo Schultz, 22, of Sharpsburg, her "boy friend," arraigned with her on a charge of disorderly conduct, was discharged.

They were arrested by Patrolman John J. Reilly at Market and Marjorie streets at 1:30 this morning, when a dispute attracted the policeman.

"What are you doing up at those hours?" asked Brandon.

"That's modern high life," she retorted, with a toss of her head.

"What's that?"

"It's modern high life."

"Are you in the habit of staying up so late?"

"I hear you," she said, insolently, but did not answer the magistrate's quetsion.

"Well, I hear you, too," was Brandon's rejoinder. "Ten dollars or 10 days."

DRYS PICK VARNEY AS PRESIDENT CANDIDATE

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP.)—An insurance man and a farmer-salesman will head the national ticket of the Prohibition Party this year.

William F. Varney, Rockville Center, N. Y., was nominated for the presidency on the second ballot at the party convention last night following a persistent attempt by a sizeable minority to nominate or indorse Herbert Hoover.

James A. Edgerton, Alexandria, Va., an Independence League official and a former Populist, who last week headed the Jefferson-Lincoln League move here to unite the Prohibition and Farmer-Labor parties, received the vice presidential nomination on the first ballot. In his acceptance Edgerton said he had been a Democrat all his life.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, was placed in nomination by delegates who opposed the Hoover support, which continued until the final balloting, when Varney received 66 votes to Hoover's 45. On the first roll call Varney had 62 and Hoover 42.

Immediately after his nomination, Mr. Varney announced that he would conduct an active speaking campaign throughout the South in an effort to unite all dry forces.

Girdlers Near New Record

By JOHN HENRY MEARS.

Written exclusively for The Sun-Telegraph. Copyright, 1928, by the New York American, Inc.

YOKOHAMA, July 13.—We are aboard the Empress of Russia for the voyage eastward across the Pacific and back to the United States, right on our schedule.

The new record is in our grasp, and only the worst of luck can snatch it from us.

We were up yesterday after only four hours sleep, bringing our grand total of sleep to 15 hours for the six days since we left Cherbourg in our plane, the "City of New York."

Immediately after rising, we left Tokyo for Yokohama, speeding by automobile so that Capt. Collyer could supervise personally the loading of our plane aboard the Empress of Russia.

Collyer and the skipper of the liner together got the aircraft safely on the stern of the ship, and then we had a whirlwind round of shopping for shirts, white trousers and other necessities of the voyage.

The Empress of Russia was prepared to wait three hours for us, if necessary, but the delay was not needed. I write this as the ship pulls out promptly on schedule.

Collyer and I still are a little shaky from our rather terrifying experience of flying through the inky blackness over Japan's soggy rice fields trying to locate an airdrome.

Subsequently we attended a Geisha party at which Collyer ranked ace high by reason of handkerchief tricks and other stunts that brought down the house. Charley had been 12 years in the Orient, and is thoroughly familiar with its customs. He made a great hit, and 15 girls personally attended him at dinner.

Yesterday afternoon, both of us were a bit soggy and in something of a daze. We want sleep, and intend to get plenty of it during the next nine days before we reach the American Pacific coast.

I would say that Pittsburgh is not only a center of great basic industries, but also the home of great statesmen.

I have had the pleasure and privilege of meeting many of them in Washington whom I hold in high esteem.

Among them I may mention two cabinet officers, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Labor Davis; Senator Reed, chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, and Representative Porter, chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

NORRIS TURNS DOWN NOMINATION

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—The Farmer-Labor Party has chosen a candidate who "does not choose to run."

Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, selected as the standard-bearer of that party, declined the nomination late yesterday, but in a statement accompanying his refusal, said that his action was not prompted by satisfaction with the two major political parties, or their platforms.

"For reasons that I have several times publicly expressed, I cannot accept the nomination for President tendered me yesterday in Chicago," he said. "This does not mean that I am not in full sympathy with those who are opposed to the platforms and the presidential nominees of the major political parties."

HITS ELECTION SYSTEM

Senator Norris declared that the present system of choosing a President is "antiquated and illogical" and added that "it is a practical impossibility for the people to select anyone who had not first been nominated by one of the dominant political parties. This system must continue to grow even worse until the people become sufficiently aroused to demand that they have a direct voice and vote in the election of a chief magistrate."

The Nebraska senator devoted only the opening paragraphs of his statement to a discussion of the electoral college, and then referring to electrical power, he declared "that in this campaign we are confronted with a practical demonstration of the power of monopoly."

He said that the power interests were strong enough to cause the major political parties in their platforms to remain silent on the issue, which he termed "the most important question before the American people."

GAS STRUCK IN WELL ONLY 2,100 FEET DEEP

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 13.—Widespread interest has been aroused by the striking of a 1,500,000 cubic foot gas well on the Smith heirs farm, Morris township, in the Maxon sand at a depth of 2,100 feet where lime is ordinarily found. Gas in paying quantities in so shallow a well is unprecedented in this region, operators say.

PERMIT LOST, BREWERY CLAIMS RAID A "FOUL"

CLAIM RIGHT OF EMPLOYES TO HAVE BEER

Although frowned upon by the prohibition enforcement authorities, there is nothing in the Volstead act against brewery employes drinking beer while engaged in work at brewing plants.

This was the contention of counsel for the Pittsburgh Brewing Company yesterday in Federal Court at a hearing before Judge R. M. Gibson on a petition of the brewing company asking the court to review the revocation proceedings by the prohibition authorities which resulted in the revocation of the permit of the company's Iron City plant, Liberty avenue. The action is for restoration of the permit.

Attorney Charles A. Fagan, Jr., told the court it has always been the custom to allow brewery employes to have beer and declared that the alleged high test brew found by prohibition agents in a cupboard when they raided the plant last November was for employes.

The room in which the raiding party found a large quantity of whisky, the attorney said, was one which E. J. Vilsack, superintendent of the plant, has used for more than 30 years.

Attorney Fagan accounted for the bottle of beer found in Vilsack's automobile by saying if there was any dereliction Mr. Vilsack was responsible, not the company, which has always obeyed the prohibition law. Revocation hearing records and briefs were filed by the government and brewery counsel were turned over to the court. A decision will be rendered later.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER REMAINS UNIDENTIFIED

Efforts are being made at the county morgue today to establish the identity of a body of a man, aged about 40, found floating last night in the Ohio River near the Coraopolis-Neville Island Bridge. The body, which was removed to the morgue, had been in the water about two weeks.

LAYS CRIME TO DANCE CONTEST

Marathon dancing was added to the causes of crime yesterday in Criminal Court. Perry Gonzales, 28, McKeesport, Negro, after dancing 200 hours, stole an automobile in McKeesport, June 2.

"I was so tired and wanted to get home, and I had no money," he told Judge Elder W. Marshall. He was allowed 30 days more in jail to rest.

George Morgan, 18, of 1612 Fifth avenue, after 154 hours of dancing in the Duquesne Garden marathon, engaged in a taxicab holdup, he admitted to Judge Marshall. With two companions, awaiting trial, he held up Meyer Schaeffer, taxicab driver, at Logan street and Our alley, the night of June 22. The three took $18 at the point of a gun. Judge Marshall suspended sentence and ordered the youth to report weekly to Capt. C. E. Conner of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery, who testified that Morgan had served in the outfit with an excellent reputation.

INGRAM LOSES DAMAGE SUIT APPEAL

The Superior Court yesterday affirmed the decision of the Allegheny county courts in the case of the Borough of Ingram vs. Harry C. Hachmeister. The earlier decision had favored Hachmeister.

Nanny J. Curry tripped and fell over a water curb box on the sidewalk in front of property owned by Hachmeister in 1920. She sued the borough and was awarded $1,750, which the borough paid. The borough then sued Hachmeister for the amount. A jury found in favor of Hachmeister, sustaining his claim that the borough was responsible.

The Superior Court also affirmed a decision of the Beaver county courts involving taxes levied by the Borough of Aliquippa against the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad. The amount involved was $2,045 and had to do with taxes levied by the borough on a section of railroad property at Aliquippa. The decision favored the borough.

BUGS BAER Says

NOW that campaign orators are starting to call names, labels, tags and prescriptions, it looks as if this election will be fought on the level.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

We still have four more months of curling humidity and corrosive repartee before we know whether a Democrat or a Republican is the man of a two-thirds destiny.

It looks as if my esteemed opponent of yesterday is going to be by over-steamed opponent of today.

Mrs. Clem Shaver started it for the Republican Party when she called a demijohn a boozocrat.

We fail to see why the distilling pot should call the retort kettle black, nor why the bottle should call the flask a hypocrite, neither do we see why bathtub should call the kitchen sink a tank, for gin is made in both of them.

Why should the keg call the barrel a bum? We were at both conventions in Kansas City and Houston, and we stick to our original statement that every dry plank has a bunghole in it.

Booze was mentioned in neither city but the microphone catches only the oratory and not the whispers.

Both the publicans and the demijohns sought to prevent scratching the thin veneer over the liquor problem. Probably on the theory that, if you save the surface, you save all.

We failed to hear booze mentioned in either city, but if three out of four get halitosis, we will follow the fourth in the hope that he is suffering from a breath that is not only louder, but funnier.

Both platforms are as dry as a toad's tongue. We are up against some kiln-dried lumber. But, if campaign speakers are going to misquote Lincoln, why not mention that the government of the people, for the individuals and by the constituents, shall not perish from this thirst?

The raids on New York night clubs indicates that the man who could carry it or leave it alone is now the man who can take it and can't carry it.

Booze is not a question in this campaign. If a Republican is a dry and a Democrat a wet, when they get together they seem to neutralize each other.

OFFICIALS JOIN CARTER'S 'KIDS'

Mayor Charles H. Kline, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner and almost 500 children in St. Paul's Orphange, Crafton, became members of the "Just Kids Safety Club" yesterday when buttons were presented them by Mr. and Mrs. Ad Carter.

Mr. Carter, creator of the "Just Kids" comic strip and the safety club, is in Pittsburgh this week as the guest of The Sun-Telegraph. The Pittsburgh club has 45,000 members. In the United States and Canada there are more than 2,000,000 members.

Thursday night Mr. Carter appeared on the stages at Harris' South Hills theater, Dormont, at 7:45 p. m. and at 9:45 p. m. at the Harris Theater, downtown. He will appear at these theaters at the same hours tonight and tomorrow night, and also at the Sheridan Square Theater probably at 9 p. m.

Saturday morning at 9 o'clock Mr. Carter will talk and draw the characters in his famous sketch for members of the "Just Kids Safety Club" in Pittsburgh. At 10 o'clock he will make a similar appearance at the Sheridan Square theater in East Liberty.

More than 200 of the 765 children in St. Paul's Orphanage were members of the "Just Kids" club when Mr. Carter visited there Thursday. Almost all of the others expressed a desire to join after he had drawn them numerous sketches of the characters. He left 400 additional buttons, the badge of membership in the organization, which has as its motto, "I promise to look up and down before I cross the street."

At 5:35 o'clock this evening Mr. Carter will talk to club members over the country from Station KDKA, Westinghouse, from the Fort Pitt hotel studio.

ICE FUND AT $500 MARK

And now The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund goes merrily into its fifth hundred, with $9.76 to spare towards the next hundred mark. Those who have been watching it glide steadily up since it opened just a little more than a month ago will rejoice that it has so soon reached the half-thousand. Every penny of this amount is needed for the good work that is going on in the headquarters of the Milk and Ice Association in the Lyceum Building and, through the field secretary, in the homes of the babies.

Three gifts are listed today. Alice Wright, a charming little miss with long curls, has contributed $1.50 which she raised by conducting a sale of candy, members of the Westminster Bible class of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church have made their annual donation of $10, and the third, of $5, is from the children of the North Side Unitarian Church school.

Admitting they had defrauded a number of downtown merchants through a bogus pay check scheme, Charles S. Arnold, 28, of Los Angeles, was sentenced to the penitentiary for two to four years and Frank Miller, 26, of Chicago, was given nine to 18 months in the workhouse by Judge Elder W. DENIES PARK CLOSING

CARRICK GETS FIRE SYSTEM

Within the next week Carrick will have complete fire protection. Thirty fire alam boxes have been erected in the former borough by Henry Angloch, superintendent, bureau of electricity. They will be in service soon.

Fire Chief Richard Smith notified Public Safety Director James M. Clark yesterday that Knoxville is fully protected by a complete fire alarm system. Twenty alarm boxes now are in commission. The installation of a fire system in Carrick and Knoxville cost the city between $60,000 and $65,000.

CLARK DISCLAIMS SLEEPING BAN

All night use of the parks is all right with Public Safety Director James M. Clark and the police, provided there is no violation of good morals and good behavior. This much Director Clark made clear in a letter to President of Council James F. Malone in reply to Malone's recent protest charging police forced people from the parks on hot nights.

Director Clark takes general exception to Malone's charges, declaring people are encouraged to sleep in the parks during hot spells. In Schenley Park, Clark says, Flagstaff Hill and the Forbes street entrance have been set aside for sleepers, with full police protection.

The director also denies motorists are forbidden use of Schenley after 10:30 p. m. Motorists may drive through the park all night, Director Clark writes, but he bans parking, "particularly in the shaded nooks."

In the smaller North Side parks people may sleep all night under police protection, Director Clark writes, but machines and people must be out of Riverview Park by midnight.

HEART DISEASE CHIEF DEATH CAUSE

Cancer, which was discussed in this series of articles yesterday, is not the only great scourge of mankind whose progress can be checked very materially by the general establishment of the periodical health examination habit.

Heart disease, Bright's disease, diabetes, tuberculosis and apoplexy are among the other very serious and very prevalent diseases with which modern medical science can deal more or less effectively by means of preventive measures and prescribed methods of diet and living, provided the patient comes to the physician before the disease has become too well developed.

Heart disease is now the leading cause of death in the United States. Tuberculosis, which formerly was the chief cause, is now in fifth place. Heart disease may give little indication of its presence until it is well advanced. A yearly physical examinatino will permit early treatment if the disease does exist; it will also ease the minds of those who have mistaken indigestion and palpitation for heart trouble, as many people do.

In a recent article in the "Survey-Graphic," Dr. Haven Emerson pointed out that the commonest cause of heart disease is general infections, such as rheumatism, scarlet fever, pneumonia, typhoid fever or influenza, and focal infections from teeth, sinuses, tonsils, etc. Where such infections exist, periodical examinations will permit remedies to be applied before the heart becomes seriously affected.

Certain functional diseases of the heart, which may in time develop into organic disease, often come from excessive use of alcohol, tea, coffee, tobacco, etc. The irregularities of the heart action nearly always clear up when the offending habit is abandoned.

Even organic disease of the heart does not necessarily mean a short life. Many people with organic heart disease have lived to old age in spite of the handicap because they have carefully followed the advice of their physicians in regard to diet, exercise, rest, etc. Only in severe forms is it necessary to give up all physical activities.

But the person with heart disease must choose an occupation within his strength, and his chances for living out his allotted days and being able to perform his daily duties are immeasurably better if he has discovered his weakness in an early stage and enlisted the help of the family doctor in fighting it or overcoming it.

RAGING WATERS RIP BUILDINGS FROM GROUND

One man narrowly escaped drowning late yesterday in flooded Plum Creek, Plum township, which rose suddenly during the heavy downpour of rain which lasted most of the afternoon.

The creek rose more than 15 feet above normal level, causing a heavy property loss. A number of small buildings were washed away, roads blocked and low lands flooded.

Joseph Morris was dragged unconscious from the creek at North Bessemer, where he was trapped when he failed to notice the water rushing down upon him. Artificial respiration was necessary to revive him. At Unity part of the confectionery store of Albert Unterberger was washed away as was a warehouse owned by F. L. Anderson. Joseph Cohen, also of Unity, reported his garage swept away.

Bathers at Unity beach, in the creek, were endangered when the high water washed away 6,000 tons of sand that had been spread along the bank. The sand clogged up the stream, and the waters spread over the banks. The water spread over the Unity-Center road, blocking it for more than six hours.

The garage of A. J. Troutman at New Texas was damaged $5,000 when the waters swept the Plum Creek Cemetery Bridge against the building. Several thousand dollars' worth of lumber owned by the W. J. Donohue Lumber Company, at Unity, was carried away. Farmers near Unity, Center, New Texas, Renton and North Bessemer reported damaged crops and flooded basements.

Fear of Gangs Hurts Chicago Hotels

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP.)—Chicago's gangsters have hurt Chicago's hotel business, according to Clifton L. Corpening, senior assistant manager of the Palmer House and president of the Hotel Greeters of America.

"The rest of the world," Corpening told Chicago hotel men last night, "is just a bit afraid of Chicago. It is up to the hotel men to see to it that when the rest of the world visits here it has a chance to change its ideas."

WELFARE FUND FILLS OFFICES

Edwin W. Smith has been elected first vice president of the newly organized Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh and Mrs. W. Lawrence second vice president.

The board of directors also filled four vacancies in its membership by election of Col. J. F. Drake, J. Frederic Byers, Miss Eleanor Hanson, representing the Social Workers, and John Hoehn, representing Central Labor Union.

A. K. Oliver, president of the fund, announced the appointment of William B. Schiller as chairman of the finance committee and Alexander Laughlin as chairman of the central budget committee.

The Welfare Fund has been organized to finance the charitable organizations included in the membership. Twenty-one organizations have joined to date. The first campaign will be held in November to secure maintenance requirements for 1929.

FOUR INJURED IN BLASTS

Two sewer gas explosions are blamed for the blasts which late yesterday injured four persons and damaged a residence in Forbes street, near Moultrie street. Total loss was estimated at $3,000.

William H. Stoerkel, of 1431 Kenberma street, Beechview; William J. Ferguson, of 2227 Tustin street; James A. Tiernan of 12 Melba place, and Jennie Goldstein, of 2216 Forbes street, were those hurt. Stoerkel and Ferguson were given first aid at Mercy Hospital and the others were attended by a nearby physician.

The injured woman resides at the damaged dwelling, 2216 Forbes street. Windows were broken within a radius of almost a block.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

VOCAL and instrumental soloists and ensembles will present the Wrigley review, which will be broadcast through the NBC System, including KDKA, at 9 o'clock tonight. The male quartet will open the program with "Window of Dreams" and also will sing "Dream River" and "Don't Keep Me in the Dark, Bright Eyes." The orchestra will play "Janina," "The Donkey and the Driver," "Bluette" and Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 5." The novelty trio will present "The Miner's Prayer" and "Sing On, Brother, Sing." A comedy duo will sing "On Weinerschnitzel Bay" and "Oh, How I Love That Girl." Other numbers will include "Porcupine Rag," xylophone solo, "Door of My Heart," tenor solo; "Angelia Mia," cornet solo; "The Bubble," soprano solo; "My Toreador," banjo solo, and "The Gingerbread Brigade," contralto solo.

Moszkowski's "Spanish Dance No. 5" will open the broadcast by the La France orchestra over the NBC network, including WCAE, at 9 o'clock. The program will contain many old favorites, among which are Sanford's "Rosebud," "My Little Dream Boat" of Coots, a piece from "Floradora" and selections from the works of such well known composers as Sinding, Dvorak and Nevin. Theodore Webb, baritone, will be heard in two selections—Clay's "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby" and "In the Shade of the Sheltering Palm," from "Floradora" by Stuart.

Vaughn de Leath, contralto, will make her second regular appearance with the Palmolive Musical Players at 10 o'clock over WCAE and other NBC stations. Her selections will be "After You're Gone" and Godowsky's "Nocturnal Tangier." Already popular after its recent introduction on the Palmolive hour, the Palmolive trio will be heard in "Chili Pom Pom Pi" and "Ida, Sweet as Apple Cider." Olive Palmer's soprano solos will be Tharane's "Norweigian Echo Song" and "Cuban Serenade," the second of the series of Victor Herbert compositions specially arranged for the radio by Miss Palmer and for which she has also written the lyrics. With Paul Oliver, she will sing "Humming." The symphony selections will be Von Weber's "Invitation to the Dance" and Cyril Scott's "Lotus Land." Paul Oliver's solo will be "In the Time of Roses." There will be the usual guitar and saxophone novelties.

A 30-minute program of popular tunes will be broadcast by the Automatic Agitators' quartet over KDKA at 10 o'clock. The numbers will include "The Tale of a Shirt," "Excelsior Duna," "Come to the Fair," "In the Garden of Your Heart" and the "Sunset Trail." There will be banjo solos also.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Train Schedules and Boat Sailings More Interesting to Pittsburghers Than Social Events

TRAIN schedules, boat sailings and the condition of highways mean much more to Pittsburghers just now than any other topic and you can see the result of this interest in the depleted ranks of our local "400." In one way or another, nearly everyone is managing to get away from the hot city—although I must say that today's weather, at least this morning's, compares favorably with any summer resort's.

But speaking of the eastern resorts, I understand that the Roy A. Hunts and their family, of Ellsworth avenue, are at Bass Rocks, Mass., instead of Watch Hill. They went East last week and are planning to occupy Dundas Villa until fall. Mrs. Hunt's father and mother, the Mortimer Millers, of Morewood avenue, are going on next week to stay with their son-in-law and daughter during the remainder of the summer.

Also at Bass Rocks are the Alexander Laughlins, of "Linganore," Beaver road, Sewickley. They have taken a cottage there, too, and will stay all summer. Their grandson, Alex Laughlin, is with them and Mrs. Laughlin's sister, Mrs. H. Page Warden, of Pasadena, went on to spend a month with them before going back to California.

THE Daniel M. Clemsons, of "Highmont," Fifth avenue, who usually spend their winters in Pasadena and their summers at Bretton Woods, N. H., are going back to Bretton Woods again this season, I hear. They are not leaving until July 25, and I believe they are planning to spend about a month at the Mt. Washington Hotel.

LAKE PLACID, too is just about as popular in summer as it is when the winter sports are going on. Quite a few local folks are there now, among them Mrs. Frank A. Hamilton, of Bayard street, and her two sons, George H. Hamilton and Frank A. Hamilton. They arrived at the Lake Placid Club this week and are going to remain for the summer at Pynrock cottage. The William E. Woodwells, of Penn avenue, are also at the club for the summer, stopping at Colden cottage.

* * *

AN engagement of interest is announced today in the betrothal of Marie Henrietta Thorne and Dr. Frederick L. Bishop, of this city. Marie is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John M. Thorne, of Schenley Farms Terrace, you know.

NEW YORK is attracting some of our local people just now, and I know of several who are spending a few days there. Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., of Beechwood boulevard, is at the St. Regis, I hear, and so is Mrs. William R. Scott.

A CARD party will be held in Malta Hall, North avenue and Reddour street, North Side, on Thursday evening by North Side Chapter, No. 382, Order of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Maude Shephard is chairman.

Shelton, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. George A. Long, of the Homewood United Presbyterian Church. After an Eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will live in Mt. Lebanon.

The ceremony will be performed in St. Peter's Catholic Church. Mrs. M. J. O'Connell and Mrs. John R. Bredin gave a bridge tea last Saturday in the Garden Tearoom for Miss Devlin.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Ella May Rodgers, daughter of Mrs. Alberta Miller, of Pittsburgh, and William Wellings Sandles, son of Mr and Mrs. V. A. Sandles, of McKees Rocks, which was solemnized Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the West Park United Presbyterian Church by the Rev. D. J. Brown. A breakfast in the Hotel Schenley followed the ceremony. After a trip to the seashore, Mr. and Mrs. Sandles will be at home in McKees Rocks.

* * *

THE marriage of Miss Katherine Schoener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Schoener, of Tingley avenue, Bellevue, and William J. Rodgers, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Rodgers, of McIntyre avenue, North Side, was solemnized last Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Schoener home, the Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart officiating. Miss Eleanor Schoener was her sister's maid of honor and Andrew Rodgers was his brother's best man. Miss Emma Gredlein played the wedding music, and the bride was given away by her grandfather, Theodore Fritzges. After a lake trip, Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers will be at home in Bellevue.

CONGRESS CLUB HEADS TAKE VACATION TRIPS

THE July issue of the Congress of Clubs "Outlet" has a gossipy little department concerning the comings and goings of the members which adds to the interest of the current number. Mrs. Carl E. ROB PARKERS; GO TO PRISON

Harry Crouse, 25, of Homewood, was sentenced to the workhouse for two to four years, and Charles C. McHale, 32, of Forty-fifth street, was given a workhouse sentence of one to two years by Judge Elder W. Marshall yesterday in Criminal Court.

They admitted holding up Julius Silverman, of Stratford avenue, late at night recently, taking $10. Silverman was in his car, with a girl companion, parked on Washington boulevard. Crouse was also accused of attacking the girl. The two bandits were riding in a stolen car, owned by J. R. Barnes, of Hampton street.

WELSH TO HOLD PICNIC AT SCHENLEY TOMORROW

The athletic events will take place in the afternoon and will be in charge of Fred W. Jones and George B. Jones. In the evening a song festival will be staged in the bandstand, and the leading Welsh vocalists of Western Pennsylvania will participate in the program, and a choir under the direction of Samuel Jones will render Welsh airs.

IT'S FRIDAY 13TH, BE ON GUARD

Those who are fearful of the sinister effect of the number "13" are proceeding cautiously today; for, coupled with the fact that it is the 13th of the month is the circumstance that it is Friday, a day of notoriously evil omen. Hence the superstitious have double reason to be on guard.

The name of those who fear Friday the 13th is legion. The number that hold "13" alone in dread is very great, as is attested by the local hotels that omit that figure in numbering rooms and floors. Friday, too, is held in horror by multitudes.

But this is the third "Friday the 13th" in seven months, and the frequency with which the "unlucky" combination has been encountered in 1928 is tending to relieve apprehension. The 13th fell on a Friday in January, April and July. There was only one Friday the 13th last year—in May. There was but one in 1926—in August. There will be two next year—in September and December. If the simplified 13-month calendar is adopted the 13th will always fall on Friday.

This, in the opinion of many, will put an end to the superstition, and is an added argument for the change.

WORKER'S DEATH LAID TO FALLING HAMMER

Bert Richards, 48, of Terrace, Pa., died last night in the Mercy Hospital of a fracture of the skull suffered when he was struck by a hammer which, police say, fell from the fourth floor of the Koppers Building, under construction at Seventh avenue and Grant street. The accident occurred Wednesday. Richards was employed as an ironworker.

Nicky Wickert Is Murdered, Kitten Had Spent the Evening With Him

"COLD? Get something to warm you in a minute. Drive over to Deep Valley; there's a place for a night like this."

"You think it safe? Well—"

He laughed and kissed her again.

CHAPTER XLIII.

THEY were in the little private dining room at Deep Valley Inn Kitten first had seen with Ted Lanier. And they had been there a long time.

A very long time, for it was nearing midnight when she climbed down the trellis. Now morning wasn't far away.

She looked at Nicky and looked at the darkness outside and worried. Once she thought white flashed at the window; once she fancied the dim outline of a face in the deep shadow of the porch. But she wasn't sure and he laughed at the idea. He had laughed a great deal this evening.

It wouldn't be true to say Nicky was drunk. As he, himself, described it, he had a "nice little edge."

"Ten or twenty more to get all sharpened up, Kittsie-child. Waiter!"

"Let's go home, Nicky. I'm tired."

"Tired of Nicky? Is that nice?"

She pouted but he caught her hands and kissed them. And ordered again.

Presently the outside door was opened slowly. Kitten held her breath when a woman came in—exhaled in a noisy sob as the neat, beautiful head lifted.

Not Nicky's wife. A stunning woman, tall, dark-eyed. But not Nicky's wife!

One who had wandered in here by mistake, she thought. Yet Nicky was rising, rather unsteadily; greeting her.

"What'n Hades you doing here?"

She answered carelessly, "Same thing as you, old dear. Fancy running on to you! Now I'm here—"

She sat down, smiling at him. Kitten she ignored.

Half a dozen untouched cocktails stood on the table; Nicky, complaining of slow service, had ordered them all at once and the waiter had brought them on a tray.

Now he moved one of these toward her and she drank it at a gulp. It was then Kitten saw how flushed the woman's face was and how unsteady her vision. Apparently she already had drunk a great deal.

"I was driving around," she volunteered, "and saw the lights. You're a good old thing, Nicky."

"You'll do that once too often," he protested. His eyes, Kitten thought, looked very deep indeed. "Better let me take you home."

"I'm going to stay right here. You go if you like."

"You know I won't. But—"

Kitten broke in, "Nicky, please, I want to go home. You said—"

He paid no attention. The two argued and forgot it as they drank again. The girl was left out.

In a fit of jealous resentment she put on her wrap, hesitated, looking back. They were leaning together faces close.

She slid out and across the porch, running down the drive.

It was a three-mile walk but she made it. Holding her breath through stretches of woodland, gasping with fear at every shadow.

Once a car passed going at high speed and filled with roisterers. Their shouts drifted back to her where she had crouched behind a tree.

Once a fox ran out on the road and stood with its eyes gleaming in the light of a street lamp. She spoke to it, teeth chattering, and it disappeared in the shrubbery.

When she turned into Main street she saw a lone man who called something; at the corner a group of young fellows were talking loudly. She dashed into an alley, hoping they hadn't noticed her.

It was broad daylight when she climbed over the sill into her room.

There was an air of tenseness about the town. Emily caught it at once on her way to the shop.

A small crowd about the door of the cigar store was talking vehemently and there was another crowd in front of the fire house. The corner of Main street looked oddly deserted; this, she realized with mild astonishment, was because Officer Al Randall who did traffic duty there, was absent.

It was a busy day in the shop. Frances had gone down to the city and Emily was trying to plan a house for a movie magnate who had bought an estate back in the country. She took her books and drawing board into the rear room where it was quiet and secluded; otherwise she might sooner have heard the news that had descended like a bolt upn Lyall.

Toward noon she glanced at the clock and thought vaguely of lunch. But she was deep in the problem of the movie magnate's private suite; she worked on.

Once she heard an extra being called; this hadn't happened since the hottest fights between Kent and Morrow's ring. She wondered if they were engaged in a new skirmish.

Abruptly the telephone shrilled; Agnes' voice, queerly strained, spoke over the wire.

"Come home, Emmy. Come right away."

"Muz? Yor're not ill Oh—"

"Come, Emmy." The connection broke.

She never knew how she locked the shop and got through the street. Afterward she had a sharp impression of seeing Marty and Anne Morrow at the Judge's window; of jerking back from under the wheels of a truck.

Half way up the hill she found she was carrying her hat; she jammed it on her head crookedly and came into the house with it lending her a rakish look.

Agnes met her, motioning to the living room. In there Kitten shrank on a corner of the divan, pallor spreading her face, hands rigid.

Al Randall, big and impressive in his uniform, was beside her with Chief Malloy, the other half of the town police force.

Emily stood in a trembling apprehension—swayed—steadied herself against the wall.

"Kitten!" Her tone was sharp as a little blade.

Randall came forward with clumsy kindness and put her into a chair. "Now don't you be upset, Miss Emmy. It's only we're askin' the young-un some questions."

Mrs. Day moaned and Kitten spoke in a chill, flat tone. "I know nothing about it, I tell you!"

Randall exchanged a glance with the Chief. "No," he began with an air of nearly exhausted patience, "we're not sayin' you do. But you'll not deny you was well acquainted with him. There's plenty seen you. Better talk, Miss. Looks better. Serious thing, a murder."

Emily heard her own voice, thin and far away. "You—you said murder? You said—"

Chief Malloy answered her quietly. "Wickert was shot to death last night at Deep Valley Inn. Your sister spent the evening with him."

CHAPTER XLIV.

EMILY didn't faint. When she felt the blankness stealing upon her she would tell herself. "Don't you dare. See this out—got to see this out—"

Then she would say again, "Kitten, you met that man? You saw him sometimes?"

And Kitten would answer, defiantly, "I know nothing about it!"

Emily turned to the officers. "She was in the house and asleep at 10 o'clock. Her room is next to mine. Please believe me! It's true—"

The Chief shook his head. "She's been seen out with the—with Wickert." He turned quickly to the younger girl. "You came home alone last night? You came in by the alley from Main street? Why did you do that?"

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

SPEAKING of SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

ONE HUNDRED AND NINETY pounds appears to be just about what the doctor ordered in the way of good heavyweights in the ring.

When they get much bigger, or heavier, than that they generally don't amount to much. And when they're smaller, or lighter, they seldom make the grade.

Jess Willard at around 260 pounds and six feet six inches tall was a towering, lumbering fellow, more or less of a misfit as a champion. Fred Fulton, as big in height and not much lighter, also was in the awkward class.

TOM GIBBONS was a bit too light for the really good heavyweights. So was Georges Carpentier. Harry Greb was an exception because of his speed. Bob Fitzsimmons and a few other small fellows also violated the general rule, but, in the main, the men who scale around 190 pounds and stand from five feet ten inches to six feet in their socks are the real leaders.

Jack Dempsey, in his prime, had the ideal height and build. He was six feet one-half inch tall and scaled just a little more than 190. He was broad in the shoulders and tapered down at the waist and had thin legs.

GENE TUNNEY, a six-footer, is down around 192 pounds for his bout with Tom Heeney, less than two weeks away. He is the ideal heavyweight. Heeney, shorter and more compact, weighs around 204 pounds and won't be much lighter when he enters the ring. The difference will be apparent in their maneuvering in the ring. Unless all the dope goes wrong, Tunney should be all around Heeney—like the proverbial cooper around a barrel. He should have no trouble avoiding Heeney's dogged marching offensive and should be able to circle about and spear him at will. Heeney, a great "taker" and not much shucks as a puncher, figures to be in there at the finish, but a sadly outpointed and thoroughly beaten challenger. Tunney has passed his peak and has been fairly well inactive, but he has not yet come anywhere near reaching the stage where he will be bothered by decline and ring rust as Dempsey was at both Philadelphia and Chicago.

TIME was when Earl Sande was regarded as the daddy of them all in the racing saddle, but those days are gone forever. The tip is out that he has gone back a long way. In fact, the gamblers who formerly bet on his mounts are betting the other way now. More than one recently has been heard to remark he would not bet on favorites in various races because Sande was to have the leg up on the horses. Earl still is the fair-haired boy with the mob and his victories are noisily acclaimed at the tracks, but the insiders have noted that he is slipping and no longer is the sure-thing bet that he formerly was.

George Daley, a New York scribe, reports that he heard one handicapper say to another the other day:

"I've never seen a jockey go back so fast. Earl has lost his form."

PREPARATIONS are being made to handle a crowd of 25,000 fans at Artillery Park, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., next Monday night, when Pete Latzo gets his second crack at Tommy Loughran's light-heavyweight championship. The hard coal region is considerably worked up over the battle, and the bugs will flock to the arena from all surrounding towns as well as from Philadelphia and New York. Latzo outfought Loughran for the first 10 rounds of their bout at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, recently, but weakened under a body attack and lost the decision in the last five sessions. Loughran has been drilling to get off to a faster start this time and to gauge his title defense over the 10-round route.

N. Y. CLUB SEEKS TO INCLUDE STARS

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—Expressing dissatisfaction with some of the Olympic selection committee's decisions, the New York A. C. is sending five athletes abroad this week and will seek to force their inclusion on the American track and field squad in the Olympic games at Amsterdam.

The five athletes, all of whom were left off the team for one reason or another, include Fait Elkins, former university star and former national decathlon champion; Weems Baskin, crack hurdler from Alabama Poly; Roland Locke, one-time University of Nebraska sprinter; Matt McGrath, veteran hammer-thrower, and Norton Jackson, a wrestler.

"Matthew Halpin, chairman of the N. Y. A. C. committee, who made the announcement, said at the same time that he would not serve as an official at the Olympic games, as a protest against the A. A. U. ruling which allowed Charley Paddock, California sprinter, to make the trip with the team.

In the absence of Olympic officials no announcement was to be obtained as to what chance, if any, the New York A. C. had of forcing Locke, Elkins and the others into the squad. Observers generally felt, however, that the Olympic selection committee's choices, made last Sunday, were final and would stand.

BUCS DENY OPTION ON BREWER STAR

The statement made by Manager Bruno Betzel of the Milwaukee club of the American Association that the Pittsburgh club had an option on Shortstop Harold (Rabbit) Warstler and probably would exercise it August 20 was denied today by President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pirates.

"Warstler may come here or he may not," said the local magnate. "We have not made up our minds on the matter and do not propose to let any one hurry us. We do not hold an option on Warstler in particular. What we do hold is the right to select any player we desire from the Milwaukee club in exchange for Catcher Roy Spencer and Pitcher Emil Yde. We may select Warstler, or we may pick another man, or we may not take any one at all from the Milwaukee team. In any event, we are not going to make any decision until August 20."

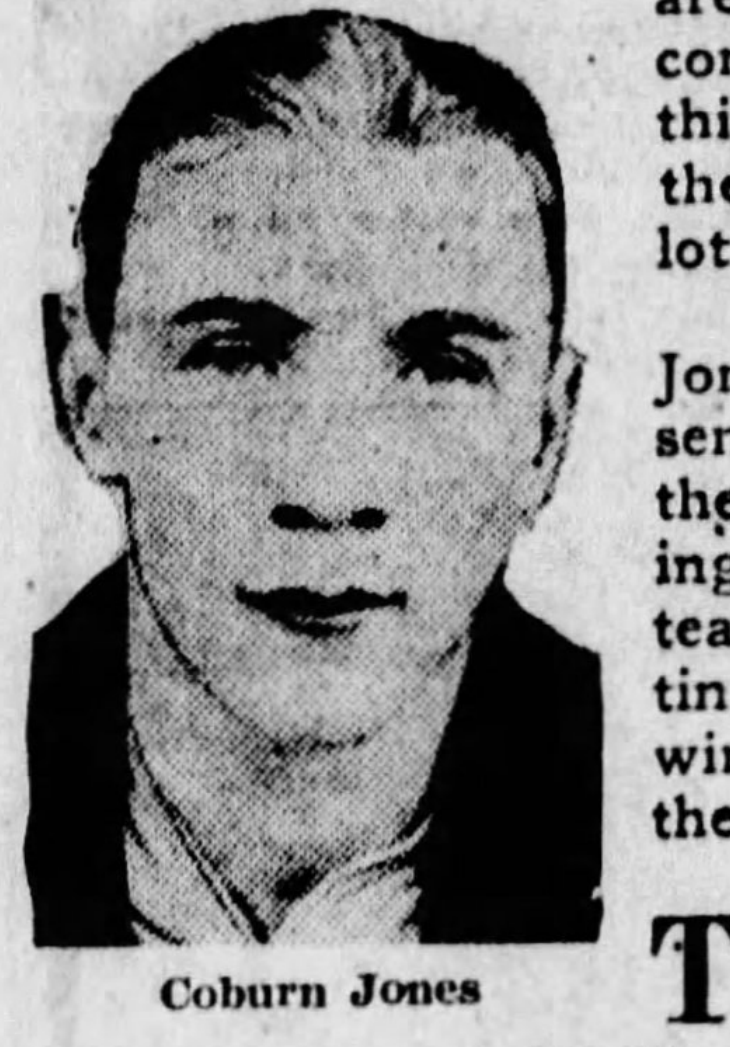
Pirate Rookies Placed in Minors Doing Fine Work—Coburn Jones Praised by Scout of Phillies—Wyckoff Now "Fastest Human." Hornsby Accused of Tampering—Landis Reserves Decision.

IF their present great work in the minors may be taken as an indication of what may be expected of them when they come back to the big show, several of the Pirate recruits who are out under options are going to be of considerable help to the Pittsburgh club this fall or next spring. Signs are that there may be a real find or two in the lot.



Coburn Jones

Foremost among them is Coburn Jones, the 21-year-old infielder who was sent to the Bridgeport (Conn.) club of the Eastern League. He has been playing brilliant ball at shortstop for that team ever since the season opened, batting and fielding in impressive style and winning acclaim around the circuit as the best shortstop in the league.

THOSE are not the only good qualities that the youngster has shown, as he demonstrated in his Pirate tryout last spring that he is so aggressive and peppery that he can outchatter even Dick Bartell—which is saying considerable.

The biggest boost that has yet been given to Jones comes from Joe O'Rourke, scout of the Philadelphia Nationals, who declares that the Pirate rookie is one of the best prospects in the entire Eastern League in any position, and that if the youngster did not belong to the Pittsburgh club he would make every effort to buy him. Eastern League fans feel sure that Cobe will stick when he returns to the Corsairs.

JONES is not the only young Pirate being developed in the minors who is standing out beyond the remainder of his field.

Catcher Claude Linton is pronounced the most valuable player on the Decatur (Ill.) team, which is leading the Three-I League in the second half of its season. He has caught in every game played by the Decatur club since he joined it and his batting, catching, throwing and all-around work have made him the mainstay of the team.

The Pirates could not carry him last spring because they already had two left-hand hitting catchers in Earl Smith and Johnny Gooch, but there is an opening for him now and he probably will be found with the Bucs before the season is over.

Frank Wyckoff

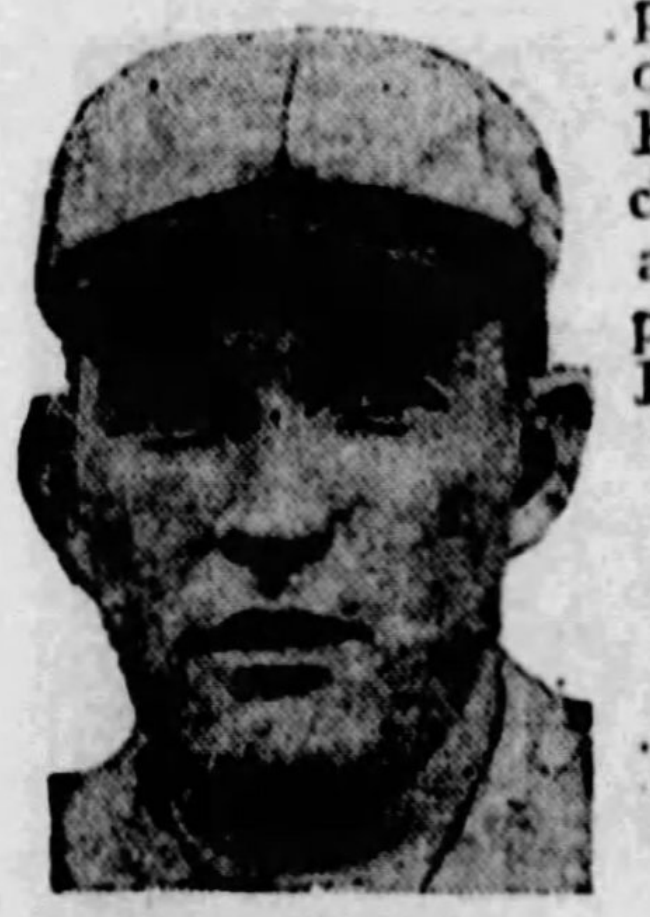
ANOTHER Pittsburgh farmhand who has been attracting a lot of attention is Glenn Spencer, right-hand pitcher, who was obtained from Binghamton in the New York-Pennsylvania League and placed with Columbia, S. C., in the South Atlantic Association. Last Monday Spencer pitched and won a 1-to-0 game against the Charlotte (N. C.) club, managed by Heinie Groh, allowing only two hits. Still another Pirate in the minor league spotlight is Outfielder Adam Comorosky. Word from Indianapolis is to the effect that the scribes there are agreed Comorosky has done his full share of the work that has put Indianapolis in first place in the American Association. Adam is hitting above .300 and fielding like a flash, the report adds.

EVEN without considering the results of the sprint events in the final Olympic tryouts in Cambridge last Saturday, Charley Paddock no longer is entitled to be called "the fastest human," in the opinion of Pooch Donovan, famous trainer. Donovan insists that Frank Wyckoff, 19-year-old school boy of Glendale, Cal., is deserving of that title.

A week before the final tryoouts, Pooch declared that Wyckoff was the festest human being he had ever laid eyes upon, faster than Paddock at the latter's best, and as the veteran has seen every sprinter or runner of note during a wide span of years his opinion counts for a great deal. Wyckoff just about made good Donovan's words, when, in the test, he beat the greatest group of sprinters in the history of American athletics. He is one American who is looked upon as practically a sure winner in the 100-meters event in the Olympics.

RUMORS that had been in circulation for some time that one or more members of the St. Louis National League club had been tampered with, culminated in the filing of a formal charge of "tampering" against Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Braves by the Cardinal chiefs.

It was alleged that while serving as coach of the Redbirds, Allan Sothoron informed President Breadon in the latter part of May that he had received an offer of a three-year contract from Hornsby to become coach of the Boston club. Sothoron was permitted to go, but as soon as his move was officially completed Breadon filed charges against Hornsby.



Rogers Hornsby

DURING a special visit to St. Louis on Tuesday, Commissioner Landis conducted a hearing, those summoned being Breadon, Hornsby, Rickey, Sothoron, McKechnie and Secretary Lloyd of the Cardinals. At the conclusion of the hearing, Commissioner Landis said he would not render his decision for several days. "Tampering" is prohibited in the following clause of the major league agreement: "To preserve discipline and to prevent the weakening of competition through enticement of players, no club shall, directly or indirectly, negotiate with or employ a player who is under contract or who has accepted terms with another club; or who has broken his contract or acceptance of terms with another club; or with whom another club has reserved the right of renewal, or who is on th voluntarily retired, suspended or ineligible list of any club.". In the original rumors another Cardinal was also mentioned, but whether the second name was brought up or not at the hearing has not been learned. The penalty for "tampering" is a fine of $200.

ERNIE NEVERS, former football star at Stanford, and who was recently transferred to the Mission Club of the Pacific Coast League after a long trial with the Browns as a pitcher, may retire from baseball when his present contract with the Mission club expires and become an assistant to Pop Warner in coaching the athletes at Stanford.

Before Nevers was sent to the coast by the Browns he received an offer from Stanford and was contemplating, if he

Junior Tourney Stars

Joseph Curto was the class of junior division in The Sun-Telegraph's West Penn Junior and Sub-Junior amateur golf tournament played over the Schenley Park free links yesterday. He shot a 68 to lead the field by two strokes. Arthur Weltner completed the task of making the tournament an artistic success by scoring a hole in one on the 150-yard twelfth hole, his spoon shot from the tee giving him the "thrill that comes once in a lifetime."

LINKS OFFICIALS AND BASEBALL STARS HELP TO MAKE TOURNEY BIG SUCCESS

Much of the credit for the splendid success of the mammoth one-day tournament of The Sun-Telegraph for the William Randolph Hearst trophy was due to the efforts of the Schenley Links officials, who worked from dawn to dusk to keep the record-breaking affair moving smoothly. John Jay Burke, executive committeeman of the United States Golf Association and city office manager of the county parks, who officially opened the tournament; Al McBride, Schenley Park professional; Andy Petrolia, caddie-master; Eddie Kunold, in charge of the locker rooms, and others all played big parts, and Capt. Pie Traynor and Fred Brickell of the Pirates lent their presence to the occasion. Above may be seen part of the gathering about the first tee. Traynor is standing in the middle of the group. Second from the left is Petrolia and next to him is Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle, baseball writer of The Sun-Telegraph. Brickell is standing behind the coatless lad next to Doyle. Immediately to the right of Traynor is Burke and next to Burke is McBride.

Fussell to Oppose Phils In Finale

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

AFTER a day of rest and relaxation, the Phillies and Pirates are scheduled to stage the last game of their series this afternoon. The rain of yesterday caused the two clubs to remain idle, but the postponed contest will not be played off until the next visit of the Quakers to Pittsburgh.

Although the squad has been cut to 21 active players, the Pirates are in good physical condition again, barring the lack of form on the part of several pitchers who have not been able to do much this year. But even in the case of the ailing sharpshooters there is cause for some rejoicing.

The form shown by Carmen Hill and Remy Kremer in their first showing was encouraging to the Junior Tournament Splendid Affair

By TOM BIRKS.

IT'S a far cry from the sunny slopes of Italia's vine-clad shores and the verdant grass of Hungary's pastoral glens to Schenley Park's historic slopes, but the gap was bridged yesterday when Joseph Curton, scion of an Italian father and a Hungarian mother, came through the crucible of America's melting pot to sink a final putt on the eighteenth green of the Schenley public links for a fine 68, two strokes over par, and lead the field in The Sun-Telegraph's junior and sub-junior amateur golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst trophy and 16 other awards.

The tournament was a fine thing and was so declared by the business and professional and golfing people on hand. It was a great day for

VICTOR'S 68 TOPS RECORD FIELD

By VERNON A SWARTSFAGER

JOSEPH CURTO, little 18-year-old blonde, is the champion of the first annual The Sun-Telegraph free West Penn amateur junior golf tournament, and the winner of the beautiful William Randolph Hearst trophy. Joe yesterday led the largest field ever to compete in any amateur one-day tournament when he scored a brilliant 68, which was only two strokes above par, to win the honors of the day.

Of an enormous entry list that numbered almost 700, more than 500 boys, 18 years of age and under, returned scores.

In the junior class, of which Curto was a contender, four were tied for second place, and the other three prizes of that division: Norman Gaylord, John Slocum, Mike Gula and Mike Baysura. All three carded 70, and will play off their deadlock for the prizes one day early next week, the time to be definitely announced in The Sun-Telegraph.

In the same division was Thomas McDonough, brother of Pat McDonough, former city champion, who was deadlocked for the runner-up honor with James Scajbarretti at 73. Mike Bakos won the fourth prize with a 74. McDonough and Scajbarretti also will play off their tie.

The prizes will be awarded one day next week following the playoffs. Time for the playoffs will be announced as soon as arrangements can be made.

Curto, who was a member of the Pittsburgh public links team when it played in the national amateur public links championship in Buffalo will not be 19 until October. He is one of the finest junior golfers in Western Pennsylvania, a most promising golfer.

In copping the coveted Hearst trophy, a solid gold medal and an iron golf club, Joe was out in 36 and back in 32 for his 68. His remarkable card follows:

GENE TO REST UP TODAY

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 13.—Gene Tunney will taper down his training today, contenting himself with road work. The champion fears he is getting on edge too soon for his bout with Tom Heeney at the Yankee Stadium, July 26. Tunney was slightly indisposed yesterday, but worked six rounds with sparring partners.

FAIR HAVEN, N. J., July 13.—Tom Heeney will continue his training right up to the day of his bout with Gene Tunney. Lope Tenario, Filipino lightweight, will report to the camp tomorrow. Heeney hopes to develop more speed by sparring with Tenario.

Ernie Nevers

THE injured thumb on the pitching hand of Ervin Brame of the Pirates, struck by a hard-batted ball on Wednesday, was reported in a much improved condition yesterday. It is expected that Brame, who has won his first two games here since his return, will be able to resume pitching by next Monday.

CATCHING for the Athletics yesterday in the first game of their doubleheader, Jimmy Foxx had the unusual number of five assists. He did not approach the record, however, which is nine, set by Mike Hines of the Boston Nationals in 1883. The American League record is eight, established by Wally Schang while with the Red Sox in 1920. Foxx had three more assists in the second game yesterday.

Another silver medal, by the way, will be awarded Howard Brubach, who was out in 58 and back in 59 for a total of 127, the consolation prize for that class.

BURKE STARTS TOURNEY

John Jay Burke, executive committeeman of the public links section, United States Golf Association, started the boys on their way before sun-up yesterday. He hit a beautiful ball down the middle of the first fairway to inaugurate what was the biggest event of its kind ever held in the history of the game, and one that is not likely to be surpassed in the near future.

One hole in one helped make the day a perfect one. Arthur Weltner of 739 Naylor avenue, a sub-junior, used a spoon to get his ace on the 150-yard twelfth hole. He was playing with George Wiest of Butler and Jack Welty of Crafton, the fourth member of the foursome having dropped out.

Hull Wilson took the most strokes of any entrant in the tournament, thereby winning the sub-junior class consolation prize, a silver medal. Wilson took 84 strokes on the first nine and 150 on the second for a grand total of 234.

The boys ranged in age from 7 years to 18, and of the more than 650 entrants, more than three-fourths teed off, with only a few dropping out during the competition.

The cards of the other prize winners in that class follow:

The Sun-Telegraph's tournament never would have been the success it was without the aid of the boys themselves, who acted gentlemanly at all times, and observed the rules of the game constantly.

And we want to thank the Schenley Park club family, Al McBride, its popular professional, who settled those few controversies there were; Chuck Onoratta and William Earl Super, assistant professionals; Eddie Kunold, for his hard work at the score board, to say nothing of Miss E. Lucille Bejack, who tendered her assistance to the cause of the kiddies; Tom O'Keefe, Andy Petrolia, caddie-master; Hoppy Hapchuck and Frank Petrolia, who pulled down his food prices especially for the boys. When it is seen that all of these men actually lost money in not being able to instruct and attend their regular duties, and gave their time and enthusiasm wholly to the boys' tournament, one can really appreciate the splendid spirit of cooperation they showed.

John Jay Burke, the executive committeeman, was on the first tee almost all day cautioning the boys before they started. His advice went a long way in impressing them as to the importance of certain things about the game.

A number of fathers, mothers, relatives and friends, as well as golf enthusiasts, also assisted in the work of running the tournament which was admittedly conducted more smoothly than many smaller tournaments.

Chester H. Lehman, president of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, and of the Westmoreland Country Club, one of the greatest supporters junior golf has ever had in this district, was a pleased spectator for some time during the afternoon. In fact, everyone appeared to think the event was a big success—and want more like it.

BIRKS

American golf. The melting pot idea was carried out in remarkable fashion with sons of numerous nations among the contestants. A little Polish lad, Steve Slivika, led the sub-junior division with a 70.

That wonderful scene at the break of day when 500 boys from all walks of life, reperesenting practically every nation on the globe, gathered, was inspiring to behold, and when more boys told of walking 10 and 12 miles in the night to be at the initial tee at their starting time, the competitive spirit became worthy of more than passing comment.

Then, as the boys stepped to the initial tee, it was noticed that bags belonging to men who have made their mark in civic, commercial and industrial life, with initialed monograms, were carried. Wealthy members of tri-state country clubs had given their favorite caddies their personal clubs to help the boys along in their quest for a title. The boys came from every nook and corner of Allegheny county and from Wheeling, W. Va. Two boys had left Bentleyville at 3 a. m. Others arrived in all sorts of automobiles, from the family flivver to the imported limousine of the country club. Clubwomen of the district took more than a passing interest in the welfare of their favorite bag-toter.

And it was amazing to see boys of 10 step up to the tee, receive a few instructions from John Jay Burke, public links commissioner, and hit the ball dead down the fairway. Foursomes, all alone, each boy trying to win—and nothing happened during the whole day to discredit any boy or the club for which he caddied.

As the setting sun settled down over the scene, late in the evening and the last boy came over the brow of the hill leading to the club house, scores had run from 68 to 214, but no alibis had come from the lads who had heeded the call of Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen when they said:

"The Hearst junior golf tourney is a thing worth while; it will create the competitive spirit among the boys and will teach them the better side of golf."

Trudging in the heavy rainpour of the afternoon were boys of Slavic, Italian, Spanish, English, Scotch and German descent, paying little heed to the elements that soaked them to the skin. It was their first tournament; it was their day. Many days through pouring rains and scorching suns they had toted bags in national, local and club affairs with the same indifference to the weather. But this was something different. They were competitors now, fighting for prizes worth while. They had seen the club members step to the porch and receive awards, partly due to their efforts; this time the winner would step up and receive a trophy emblematic of Western Pennsylvania's junior non-club championship, and he would be one of them. So back to their homes and clubs went the boys, winners and losers, after it was all over, satisfied to have given their best and praising the event.

PIRATES

Pittsburgh bosses. Kremer scored a victor over the Quakers in the first game of the series, his performance in spots being a reminder of the same Frenchman who was a terror to the batters of the circuit over a period of four years.

Frenchy has not entirely recovered his form, but there is reason to believe that his work in the last half of the race will be much better than during the first half. This also applies to Carmen of Corry. Other Pirates stated yesterday that Hill carried a lot of stuff to the mound and looked like his former self when he relieved Ervin Brame in Wednesday's contest.

And Lee Meadows, too, appears to be on the mend to some extent. The management is not expecting big things off the Southerner, but Lee is ready to do the relief trick any time, and that is something.

Speaking of Brame, it is believed that he will be able to take his regular turn on the mound, the injury to his hand not being serious. Brame was nicked with a line drive from Fresco Thompson's bat on Wednesday.

Fred Fussell was nominated for yesterday's pitching assignment and it is likely the selection will stand. If it does, Burleigh Grimes will oppose the Boston Braves tomorrow in the first game of a series with the New Englanders.

LOCAL MEN IN EAST AT AIRPORTS

NEW YORK, July 13.—One hundred Pittsburgh business men arrived here this morning to inspect New York and New Jersey flying fields, airplane factories and study aviation in general.

Denial was made that a merger of the Curtiss and Fairchild airplane plants was in contemplation and that Pittsburgh interests were concerned in a financial way, but it was conceded that the trip may have something to do with the organization of a Pittsburgh company to build planes in that city. Officials of both the Curtiss and Fairchild companies denied the merger story.

The trip is sponsored by Pittsburghers who believe that Pittsburgh has an opportunity to become the center of airplane manufacture.

Bankers, business men and leaders in airplane manufacture met the visitors today and escorted them to plants on Long Island for a tour of inspection. They were to meet Col. Arthur Goebel, who flew from California to Hawaii; Clarence Chamberlin and Commander Richard E. Byrd, who flew the Atlantic.

Tomorrow the Pittsburghers will go to Montauk Point, Long Island, to inspect seaplanes. They will also be given the opportunity to ride in the planes. They will attend a dinner tonight in honor of Commander Byrd, leaving for home early Sunday morning.

CHIEF PUTS BAN ON CRUSADE

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—Use of Boy Scouts in a campaign to halt smoking by women, as proposed by the Cleveland Scout Council, has been repudiated by the executive board of the Boy Scouts of America.

The Cleveland council recently adopted a resolution condemning advertisements tending to induce women to smoke cigarets, and the Scouts were urged to adopt as another "daily good turn" the creation of sentiment against smoking by women.

CLEVELAND RAPPED

James E. West, chief scout executive, in a letter to Floyd A. Rowe, president of the Cleveland council, took the latter organizaton to task for acting in a matter which is not in the province of a local council and which involves "misunderstanding as to the real aims and purposes of the Boy Scout movement."

"To us here," the letter said, "it is most unfortunate, and indeed absurd that a suggestion should be made by any representative of the Boy Scout movement that Boy Scouts would approach women smoking in public and ask them to give up the habit.

AGAINST OBLIGATION

"It is not within the province of the local or even the national council to undertake to pass resolutions or legislate on any of the many problems before the American public. We are obligated by our constitution to avoid participation in controversial and political questions."

SKYWARD

by Commander Richard E. Byrd

Byrd Advocated Creation of Bureau of Aeronautics In Navy Department

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Commander Byrd first trained for a seafaring profession, but later turned his interests to an aviation career. He has described the dangers of experimental or pioneering flying and the crash of the America. During the war he was detailed to establish a war unit in Halifax, N. S. He describes the adventures of the fliers who for the first time in history crossed the Atlantic Ocean by air.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Strong Reaction Against Aviation

CHAPTER XII.

WITH the war over and the Atlantic Ocean crossed by air a lot of people thought aviation had passed its peak.

"Why not get out of flying?" my brother, Capt. Tom Byrd, of Virginia, asked me. "You've done your bit, Dick. Try something less dangerous for a change."

Another, a friend more given to violent speech, said:

"It's all a delusion, Byrd. Flying will never be any safer than it is now. It's only a question of time before you break your neck."

"Got to die anyway," I laughed at him.

"Surely. But why hasten the great day? The man in the street is never going to fly. Commerce doesn't want to risk valuable articles to the air. There's still plenty of room on the earth——"

"But not for long," I broke in. "City traffic has got out of hand. Already the big suburban transits are jammed in rush hours."

"Their own fault. Besides, why push flying and kill a lot of people until humanity really needs it?"

"Don't we need it now?"

"Only the fighters, the Army and Navy. The war is over; why keep on building weapons?"

Aeronautics Opposed

And so on indefinitely. Reaction against the war included a wide reaction against flying at least among a certain kind of people. The Navy was not thoroughly organized as far as aviation was concerned, which was only natural, due to its youth, so we were having our internal troubles. Gen. William Mitchell began at that time harassing the Navy and its aviation, and he had plenty to talk about due to our poor internal organization.

Many in our military forces, and a proportion of the press, blamed troubles of Army and Navy flyers on Congress. It was said widely that Congress wouldn't make the proper laws or appropriate enough money.

This was not so. Both Senate and House were keen about the new means of transportation that would mean so much to many of their outlying districts.

Before I knew it I was drawn into the maelstrom of doubt, rumor, threat and conspiracy that surrounded American aviation.

When I reached Washington after the trans-Atlantic flight, aviation held a more unenviable position in the Navy Department than I had realized.

Many admirals and others in power were dead set against it. There was no bureau to handle it. Capt. Irwin, "Director of Naval Aviation," with little authority as compared with heads of other branches of the service, was opposed to creating a special Bureau of Aeronautics in the Department. Members of the general board were growing irritable over what they called "absurd fancies of young flying radicals."

Aviators Organize

And in the midst of it all Gen. William Mitchell was quietly going ahead with his plans for a United Air Service that would take the aviation out of the hands of both the Army and the Navy. Those of us who had come into intimate contact with England's troubles with her Rural Air Force believed that, in principle, such a plan was wrong.

So we—a group of young fliers—began to organize. What an assemblage it was; full of enthusiasm and enormous belief in the future of aviation.

I suppose we had all seen so much violence and death in one form or another that we didn't quail as much as formerly at charging a few elderly admirals.

In a moment of expansion I volunteered to write a bill to present to Congress for the creation of a Bureau of Aeronautics in the Navy Department. If this could be done aviation would at once be put on an equal footing with other naval activities. My fellow conspirators took me at my word and I was chosen to do the job.

When the bill was ready a picked handful of shock troops, three other pilots and I, took the masterpiece to our superiors. It didn't occur to us to go directly to Congress the way Billy Mitchell had done.

Daniels Indorses Plan

I have always felt very keenly that whatever differences naval officers have should be fought out in the Navy. Younger officers are never intimidated for expressing their honest opinions. I don't believe there has ever existed a purer or more high-minded organization than our Navy.

The start was not auspicious. Capt. Irwin and the majority of the admirals were against us.

Then, abruptly, the enemy's works began to crumble. Capt. T. T. Craven relieved Capt. Irwin and though not with us at first soon became convinced that he was "Director of Aviation" in name only and shifted to our side.

Admiral Taylor, chief of the Bureau of Construction, joined us, a brilliant ally. In fact, he had been for the bureau from the first. Admiral Benson, keen as a whip, began by consigning us to the devil, then became one of our strongest advocates. Franklin Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, came in strongly from the first. When we went to Secretary Daniels and presented our list of credentials he didn't even make a fight.

"Now what are you going to do?" asked Mr. Daniels.

"Get Congress to pass the bill," we said, little knowing the size of task we were setting.

The Secretary smiled and dictated for me a strong letter of indorsement for the plan.

Audience With Sen. Page

My first call "on the hill," as the Capitol is called, was at the office of Senator Page, of Vermont, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee of the Senate. He listened quietly while I told my story.

Somewhat to my astonishment he asked some intelligent questions. Men who were not fanatical aviation enthusiasts did not know much about flying then.

"Well, what do you want me to do?" he said at last.

After a quick breath I plunged in. "Call a special meeting of the Naval Affairs Committee and let me make an appeal for a Senator to champion and father the Bureau of Aeronautics bill," I told him.

Had the roof fallen in at that moment I should not have been a bit surprised.

The Senator rose, resting his capable hands soldidly on his desk as if he had at last come to a weighty conclusion. He looked at me with unblinking eyes.

Was I to be committed to an insane asylum for daring to interfere with the routine of so august a body as a Senate committee? Or was I only going to be sent to sea at short notice for being an impertinent young upstart?

"Mister Byrd,—" The Senator paused a moment that seemed an hour. "Will Friday do?"

For sending me to a sanitarium or to sea? That was my thought. But I said, in a voice that sounded flat and foolish: "For a meeting of the committee, sir?"

"Yes."

"Yes—yes, sir. Of course, sir." I got out before I embraced the gentleman from Vermont.

Bill Jeopardized

Senator Keyes, of Vermont, consented to father the bill in the Senate. Then Congressman Hicks got Thomas Butler, Chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee and the next ranking member, Fred Britten, on our side. Before I knew it, the committee approved the bill.

The next task was to get it voted on. There are always hundreds of meritorious bills floating around Congress. But like seeds of the lavish cottonwood, few fall on fallow ground and take root. By some ingenuity our bill's friends managed to get the floor leader, Frank Mondell, and Martin Madden on the Appropriations Committee, to tack the bill to the Naval Appropriations bill as amendment. That made a vote sure.

Now, I heard at the last minute that one silver-tongued Congressman was going to speak against the amendment. People knew so little about aviation in general and naval aviation in particular that any sort of eloquence against the bill had a good chance to kill it.

At the bad news I dashed about in desperation, wondering how to head the enemy off. I was not an experienced lobbyist; I knew that I shouldn't lobby anyhow, but the situation was desperate.

I decided to call up Capt. Craven to see if he could suggest anyone. At that moment I was standing outside the office of Congressman P. P. Campbell, chairman of the Rules Committee. I went into his outer office and got permission to

FRIEND OF YOURS?

Say, do you know that fellow who stands on your nearest corner? And that fellows you drive past every morning and every evening on the way to the office? They are "traffic cops" and mighty bright fellows to those who know them. Today The Sun-Telegraph presents another in its series and tomorrow will give his name. Speak to him!

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS WILLIAM HARPER, MARRIED, 625 BERKSHIRE STREET, BROOKLINE, WHO HAS SPENT HIS ENTIRE 20 YEARS OF SERVICE AS A CORNERMAN. THE YOUNGSTERS AT TWENTIETH AND CARSON STREETS LIKE HIM.

THOMPSON FACING JAIL

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 13.—Jail doors yawned wider for Josiah V. Thompson, onetime millionaire coal king, today when, for a second time, he was adjudged in contempt of court.

Judge J. W. Dawson, of Fayette County Orphans Court, adjudged Thompson in contempt for failure to pay more than $200 to L. K. Porter, of Pittsburgh, trustee of the estate of John A. Niccolls, father of the Princess of Thurn and Taxis.

The court ruled that unless Thompson pays $215,477 by September 1 to the Niccolls estate, he is to be committed to jail, "there to remain" until he makes restitution.

The action against Thompson and his brother, William, was instituted by the princess and her two sons by a former marriage. The Thompsons formerly were trustees of the Niccolls estate and are alleged to have misused funds. William Thompson is relieved of the jail sentence but must pay $7,262.65, representing borrowed money due the estate.

A similar jail order some months ago was made against J. V. Thompson in the estate of Mrs. Emma Messmore. He appealed and the decision was adverse to Thompson. This decision placed him on the threshold of jail and today's order doubles his troubles. His plea is "no funds."

HEAT

It was hot, everyone agreed, when the Retail Grocers' Association of Allegheny County held its annual outing at West View Park. Helen Smith fanned and was cool.

RELIEF

The heat was the big topic of the day for many. Erma Workmaster and Emma Riehn found the coolest spot under their own little parasol. Here they are under.

FOOD

Grocers at a picnic have a penchant for giving away food, food of all sorts. Guillemette Rush was at the picnic and, of course, tried some of the food. This is a doughnut.

Will Rogers Says

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 13.

Say, did you notice who the Democrats grabbed off for stage manager? They are finally getting some sense and quit trying to appeal to the poor people with poor people.

They figured let us grab off some rich men and make our party look like somebody had something. There is nothing impresses the "common folk" like somebody that ain't common.

This fellow took General Motors when it was nothing but a few bent axles and some old carburetors and put it on Wall Street and got away with it.

Now if he can combine all the loose nuts of the Democrats he is liable to repeat.

Yours for money in politics,

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!

by FRANK L. PACKARD

Verna's Life Is Threatened Unless Bob Tells the Secret of the Idols

"YES," she said almost inaudibly; and then, with a queer, trembling little smile: "I—I believe in your Chinamen now."

"How did this happen? How did they get here?" he demanded hoarsely.

"That man there"—she indicated Java Dick with a movement of her head—"came to me with a note from you that I know now, of course, that you never wrote. But I had never seen your handwriting, and I had no suspicions He had a car and was dressed like a native chauffeur. I knew that Captain Scarface would have told you I was back in Singapore. The note said that you had met with an accident on the Alita, and asked me to come to you at once."

Something was dawning in Bob Kingsley's soul—something that for a moment in its great amazement held him silent.

It was Chen-shu who spoke.

"In what way could the maiden be induced to come more quickly? he laughed again maliciously. "Where hearts are entwined, anxiety is not to be denied, and wings of incredible swiftness are as the sluggish movement of the snail!"

CHAPTER L.

"MY God! I see!" Bob Kingsley's brain was racing. Chen-shu's belief that they two, that Verna and himself, were lovers! The cleverest move that Chen-shu could have made, were it but true that Verna, instead of hating, cared! The irony of it that Chen-shu's ruse, based on a hopeless fallacy, had been successful! "You thought," he flung out at Chen-shu, "you counted on—" He checked himself. He turned from the leering face, and his eyes held again across the room on Verna. But now his voice broke as he spoke to her. "But you—Verna!" he said. "You came because you thought I—I was—"

"Was hurt," she supplied quickly as he hesitated—and suddenly her face was crimsoned, and tears seemed very near her eyes. "Could I do less? I know now that it was these men who killed my brother, for that Chinaman there, the one you called Chen-shu, told me so, after he got me here; and he told me that unless I made you tell him where the cipher was that he said you had, I was to die too. Oh, must I talk before these brutes! I—I went because, even before Chen-shu told me this, I knew—I knew—" Her voice faltered. "O, don't you understand?"

It was not in her words—it was in her eyes, in her face, in her voice. It was a new Verna! There was no Java Dick, no Chen-shu, no peril, no world outside—only a song in Bob Kingsley's heart. It was like some wondrous miracle! she cared! He started eagerly toward her—only to have the bald reality of his situation and of hers brought instantly back to him again as he was once more thrust roughly up against the wall.

"Oh, my God!" he cried out in sudden agony. "Why did you ever leave Kalawa!"

But now it was Java Dick who answered.

"It don't matter why she left there," he said coarsely. "What counts is that she's here, and that she croaks if you don't come across, young fellow Black Bob, with that bit of writing that was in one of them idols."

Bob Kingsley thrust his hands into his pockets—he wanted to clench them unseen. He wanted a moment to fight himself back to composure. Her life and his own depended on what he did and what he said now. No—that wasn't true—except temporarily. No matter what he did, or what he said, neither Verna nor himself would in the end get out of this alive if Chen-shu had his way. The man had as good as said so when, thinking no doubt to inspire terror and leave no question in Verno's mind that he would carry out his threats, and so cause her to plead the more desperately with him, Bob Kingsley, to return the genuine cipher, Chen-shu had confessed to the murder on the Monotah. But Chen-shu had overreached himself a little there. He had too plainly shown his hand. Chen-shu wouldn't let Verna go—and place a halter around his own neck! Chen-shu would never let him, Bob Kingsley, go, who had been an actual witness to the murder. This one fact was drumming, thudding, pounding at his brain now. Any promises that might be made, any bargain that might be struck, would be hollow, worthless, false. The only thing that was left for him to do was to fight for time. His nails now were biting into the palms of his hands. With time, something might happen! Fear? Yes, he knew fear now! With time, something might happen! That was the only chance there was.

"Well, what you got to say?" prodded Java Dick savagely.

Bob Kingsleys hands came out of his pocket. He hunted for a cigaret—and lighted one. Both Java Dick and Chen-shu had drawn nearer to him. Java Dick's face was working viciously; but the blandness in Chen-shu's face was the more vicious of the two.

"Nothing for the moment," he said coolly. "You're assuming a good deal, aren't you? There are your two idols on the floor; and, so far as I know, those two pieces of paper there are the same ones that were in the idols when your friend Mindar Singh sneaked away from the Alita with them last night."

Chen-shu stooped down and picked up the idols together with the two slips of paper. He extended the latter on the palm of his hand.

"One of these is the work of Hsi Yan," he purred; "the other is the work of one who, if he trusts too much to a nimble tongue, will find himself shortly deprived of the power of speech."

"Yes," growled Java Dick, "don't you try to come any of your games on us! 'Twon't do you no good, or that girl either! You ain't got a chance! We've got you dead to rights. And in case you don't think so, and so's there won't be any mistake, I'll tell you where you stand. And, first-off, I'll have you know that turban-headed swine of a Mindar Singh ain't no friend of ours. 'Twas him that came down from Kalawa, and nosed around and found out what the police couldn't find out. Savvy? The police were looking for the men who had been on Hsi Yan's junk—these chaps here, all except him that was killed last night! but nobody knew who'd been on Hsi Yan's junk, and nobody knew what had become of the junk either—but if you'd like to know, I'll tell you. They sunk her a bit up the coast, and came in overland to Singapore. Then they kept under cover; but Mindar Singh spotted 'em, and watched 'em. And last night he sneaked in on Hsun Chi, whose turn it was to keep the idol, and dropped him cold with a knife."

"So that part of his story, at least, was true!" Bob Kingsley exclaimed involuntarily.

"You're right, it was, if he slipped you that!" snarled Java Dick. "But he ain't crowing about it now! He'll pay for it, you can take my blooming word!"

"But not all in one payment!" murmured Chen-shu with a sly smile. "No man could pay so great a debt except little by little to his leniently inclined debtors—just a little at a time! Does the Heaven-Born in his vastly superior wisdom know of any other way whereby the payment might be fully made?"

Bob Kingsley did not answer. His fingers itched to close around that yellow, scrawny throat. God help Mindar Singh if he were, as he obviously was, in their clutches! He looked around him. Verna still stood near the door; still held, as he was held, by a group of Chinamen. Her eyes met his bravely—and she smiled. He felt the color leave his face. He could not smile.

"Well, d'ye see!" went on Java Dick in an ugly tone. "That's Mindar Singh's end of it, and the rest ain't hard to guess. Me and Chen-shu's been pals for years. I wasn't on no junk at Kalawa, but, swipe me, I'm in on the pickings now! I tried to get you to come back here last night after you'd said you had one of them idols, but you were too leery. You figured I'd stand in with you on account of that little talk we had about going after opium five years ago, didn't you? That's where you ran up against it, Black Bob! You and me might have been pals eh? Too bad now—ain't it?"

"You're making a damned long story out of this—and it's a bit tiresome!" said Bob Kingsley coldly.

Java Dick scowled—and suddenly shook his fist in Bob Kingsley's face.

F'r instance I was TOO imPRESSED because when I MET this cold TAR on the BEACH today, my dear, he began talking about how he LOATHED the iDEA of HIP-flask-toting and I mean he sort of raved ON about it fluently and said he NEVER toted a flask on his hip, whereupon I was simply THRILLED, my dear, because I mean I HONestly think it's a VILE custom and all, but I NEARly deFLAted with a faint SQUEAL when he proceeded to exPLAIN that the REASon he never carried a flask on his hip the way practically ALL these pipsqueaks do, my dear, was because there were no hip POCKets in his TROUSERS! Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Dicky Refuses to Be Drawn Out by Lillian

EVEN as I walked out on the veranda, giving the agreed signal to Lillian that Dicky's part of the conversation could be heard indoors, I filed away the conviction that Dicky was evading whatever question Lillian had asked him by taking refuge in bluster. I remembered once when I had asked him some question which he did not want to answer and I had half playfully asked if his reply was "on honor," he had spoken, as he had just now to Lillian of "an infantile rigmarole," which he had refused to repeat. Knowing as I did that her questions concerned the identity of the red-haired man, I concluded that Dicky had added no whit to her information concerning the man.

That she had come to the same conclusion I knew as she rose and came toward me.

"Are you a dummy, or aren't you playing?" she asked.

"Not playing, thank all the gods there be," I answered, lowering my voice. "Mother has established martial law in there, and any offenders won't wait until daylight. They'll be shot at midnight."

She laughed merrily, but my ears are attuned to her voice, and I could detect no mirth in the laughter. Indeed, I guessed that she could not have repeated my words if she had been asked to do so.

"Then come out here," she said. "It's heavenly."

I crossed to the chair nearest her and sat down. Dicky waited only until his going would not appear pointed before begging us to excuse him.

"I shall have to be up very early in the morning," he said as he left us and I knew, of course, his reason for early rising. He meant to begin his sketches of Eleanor Lincoln at the earliest possible opportunity and, as upon his first essay, intended to precede the lesson with a ride through the lovely wood roads which the equestrians of Eastern Long Island know so well.

But the knowledge gave me no pang of jealous anger such as had been my first reaction to his interest in the beautiful young chatelaine of The Larches. It was as if the sight of Edith Fairfax's picture had dwarfed the thought of any other feminine admirer of Dicky's.

From somewhere I pumped up the courage to send a cheery call after him.

"I'll tell Katie to have an extra early breakfast for you," I said, and the "thank you," which he sent back had a distinctly startled note in it.

"At-ta girl!" Lillian whispered. "He's wondering how much of that cheery indifference is real, and that's a salutary mental exercise for him. But how I'd like to put him through a course of physical exercises — dancing at the swish of a good stout strap with a buckle at the end!"

I laughed, as I always do when Lillian utters one of the vicious wishes which are the harmless outlet for anger with her. But I knew that Dicky's failure to satisfy her as to the identity of the red-bearded man had annoyed her intensely.

"I'm glad you can laugh," she said darkly. "I feel like anything else but. The Dicky-bird's decided to quit the aviary for awhile and turn himself into a clam. Not a word could I get out of him about the red-bearded man. But if he thinks he's put me off the track, he has another thought or two or three coming to him. I know I've seen that chap before, and his trying to dodge me won't do him a bit of good, even if Dicky is trying to protect him. I'll find out if I'm right about him, if I have to sit on the doorstep of that shack until I smoke him out."

Hands Artists Rave About

Whenever New York artists or photographers want an exquisite pair of hands for "close up" reproduction they call in Annette Grandin. She has hands of rare beauty that can stand "close up" reproduction, because they are so delicately white and smooth.

"The secret," Miss Grandin says, "lies not in any special care, or in the use of fancy lotions, but simply in a skin bleach of my own making. I get three ounces of Orchard White at the corner druggist and mix it with the juice of two lemons. This makes a full quarter pint of a remarkable, and at the same time perfectly harmless bleach. I rub a little into my hands—also my neck and face—every night and this keeps my skin not only clear and white, but soft and smooth."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND

By LOUISE PEPLE ARMSTRONG

TWO men were fishing together in the Maine woods. They had been strangers until they met in the train two days ago on their way up from the South. Forbes, the elder man, possessed of a reserved and taciturn manner, had during the long hours of their trip allowed himself to unbend to the genial conversation of Willis, the younger, and had in a moment of impulse suggested that they camp together for a few days. Willis had eagerly accepted. He hated being alone, he said. The sound of his own voice awed him, and the silent woods at night brought memories.

Forbes smiled ironically now at the thought of that frank, queer speech of his companion's. Willis had certainly exercised his voice enough since they had been together. The first day, Forbes had registered a mental vow never to pick up another casual acquaintance for a fishing trip, and already he looked forward gratefully to the morrow, when Willis must hurry on to join his wife's cousin in Portland.

After a day spent together Forbes could easily see Willis wasn't an experienced sportsman. He seemed rather to be making a business of fishing, to be keen on doing it correctly.

Presently Willis coughed significantly, knocked the ashes from his pipe and said: "It's been mighty decent, your having me here. I've enjoyed your company, Forbes. You're silent—but you're not gloomy. I hate gloomy people. Hide your troubles and grin! That's my motto."

And Forbes was startled to realize that this in truth was the younger man's philosophy. He didn't look up until there had been a moment's silence. Then he laughed and said, "I've no troubles to hide, sorry you thought I had. I suppose it's because I'm absolutely contented with life, that I don't say much. Yes, you're right. Maybe I'd grin if I had 'em—but I haven't any troubles."

Willis looked at him fixedly. "Are you married?" he finally asked.

Forbes nodded. "Been married 15 years."

Willis sighed. "I'm married, too," he announced in a casual tone. "My wife and I are great pals. She's the only woman I ever cared anything about — that is, seriously. There was one girl before her—a school teacher. But that was puppy-love. I often think of her though. You see, we were—well, engaged before I went to New York. Then we drifted apart."

"And you met your wife in New York?" asked Forbes with a polite show of interest.

"Yes," replied Willis, and Forbes saw the fixed grin return to his rather round face. "She's a wonderful woman, one in a hundred. I'm a lucky guy to have married her. She was Elaine Patterson—only child of her family."

Forbes whistled softly. "The heiress?" he asked curiously.

Willis looked extremely uncomfortable. "The same," he said briefly. "She's a fine girl," he added emphatically. "We've been very happy together."

They ceased talking then; Forbes felt strangely ill at ease. He could not have the same regard for Willis, now he knew him to be the husband of a rich woman. Of course he'd married the Patterson girl for money.

Rolled in his blankets, Forbes began to think of Hester, his wife. She had been thrifty when he was poor, and now that he was well up in the world, Forbes gloried in giving the woman of his heart everything she desired. The light in her dark blue eyes, the calm, steady light, told him he had given her happiness and contentment. Funny how Willis had asked him, "Are you married?" when he said he had no troubles.

"Are you awake, old chap?" asked Willis suddenly in the darkness. "Well, there's something on my mind—something I'd like to talk frankly about." He laughed and his laughter had a hollow sound. "That girl I was speaking about tonight—remember? The girl I left behind when I went to New York. Well, I didn't treat her square. She was a sweet little thing—and she loved me!"

Forbes cleared his throat uncomfortably. "I wouldn't take it seriously," he said. "You were both young."

"I didn't—then. And I scorned old-fashioned chivalry to women. We men of the South, I thought, had made a fetish of it. I wanted to get on in the world, to travel, become a metropolitan—see Paris, Rome, Naples, Greece, Egypt. I'd set my mind and heart on a high resolve—"

"Why call it high?" asked Forbes impulsively. "I see nothing high about it."

"What do you mean?" asked the other.

"The resolve to get wealth," was the candid reply.

"Anyway, I got it," returned Willis in sulky tone, like a contrary schoolboy. "And I never could have got to the top, married to Hester Grymes."

"Why—who did you say?" asked Forbes quietly.

"She was the girl—the girl I left. I'm not sorry about anything, you understand. And yet, when I think back, I might have been kinder—might have written!"

"I wouldn't worry about Hester," said Forbes drily. "You've other responsibilities now."

"Responsibilities?" questioned Willis vaguely. "Oh yes! I've got to meet my wife's cousin in Portland. Tell you the truth, I can't stand the man!"

"Then why meet him?" asked Forbes, and could have bitten himself for the words the next instant. But he need not have been alarmed.

"Elaine set her heart on my becoming an expert fisher," Willis' voice in the dark had a miserable note. "He'll take me to his club to fish. I'm no good at polo, and a dub at golf. And I owe it to Elaine to be nice to her people."

"I understand," said Forbes kindly.

He was really moved the next morning as Willis wrung his hand. "You're a good sport," Willis said, "and the first real friend I've had in years. I'll not forget!" he flushed painfully. "After what I said of Hester, you'll think—"

"Oh, no," Forbes assured him. "You've learned a bitter lesson—you've learned the worth of sincerity. I'm sure you'll not be forgetting. And as to Hester, I wouldn't worry about her any more. She's all you have said of her—and more. I'm well acquainted with Hester Grymes, in fact she's my truest friend. We've been married for 15 years."

Menu for Sunday's Dinner

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Broiled Beef Steak
French Fried Potatoes
Asparagus with Grated Cheese
Stuffed Cucumbers
Ice Cream and Cake

GET a good thick steak. You do not get the real flavor of a broiled steak unless it is at least an inch and a half thick. Don't worry about having some left over, because tomorrow we are going to have a beefsteak and kidney pie.

Should there be the least doubt in your minds about the tenderness of the steak, marinate it over night in French dressing. It will not harm the flavor of the meat in any way, but it will tender it.

Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and place near the flame, so that the meat sears quickly. Turn often. It is the quick cooking on first one side and then the other, causing the juices to run back and forth along the sinews, which makes for truly delightful flavor.

PEEL potatoes and cut in strips. Soak in cold water for at least an hour. Dry on a cloth, and fry in deep fat until golden brown.

Wash asparagus and cover with boiling salted water. Cook for 20 minutes. Melt butter in a saucepan and pour it over the asparagus. Sprinkle with grated cheese and serve.

Peel cucumbers, cut in halves lengthwise. Remove pulp and chop. Mix pulp with an equal amount of drained grated pineapple. Sprinkle salt in the cucumber cases, fill with stuffing, and serve with French or mayonnaise dressing, as your taste dictates.

YOU may have noticed that I have chosen this entire dinner with an eye to quick cooking. It may be prepared in the middle of the day and still leave time for an afternoon jaunt. Or it may be quickly gotten together on the return from an all-day trip. May I suggest as a further means of simplifying the menu that you get ready-made ice cream and cake.

Fruit Salad Dressing—Two lemons, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons Blue Ribbon Malt Extract (hop flavored). Beat the eggs well. Add the lemon juice and sugar. Beat. Cook in double boiler and boil until it thickens. Add the Blue Ribbon Malt Extract, hop flavored. Apples or bananas will not discolor if this dressing is used. Orange or pineapple juice may be used to vary this recipe. Whipped cream may be added to make a more delicate dressing.

French Dressing—Put 2 tablespoons of vinegar, 4 tablespoons of olive oil, ½ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper in a small cream jar and shake. Some people prefer a few drops of onion juice.

Parisian French Dressing—Mix the following ingredients in the order given—½ cup olive oil, 5 tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon opwdered sugar, 1 tablespoon finely chopped Bermuda onion, 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, 4

Whipped cream desserts at plain milk cost

by Mary Blake

Isn't that interesting news! Just think of all the delicious fluffy bavarians and charlottes and creams that you can have, without a bit of expensive whipping cream!

This is what you do. Buy a few cans of Carnation Milk. Take off the labels, put the cans in a pan of water and boil the water five minutes. Let the cans cool, then put them in the refrigerator to get thoroughly chilled. Whenever you want a dessert with whipped cream as a basis, simply open a can of Carnation, pour the milk into a chilled bowl, add ¼ teaspoon gelatine (dissolved) to cup of milk—and whip!

Carnation makes wonderful desserts, rich and smooth and creamy. It has a double portion of cream, you know, broken up into the finest particles so it stays distributed all through the milk. Its richness and fine texture make candies and ice creams, cream sauces and soups, puddings and cakes exceptionally fine-textured and delicate. And when you think that this pure whole milk—evaporated for convenience and sterilized for safekeeping—costs only one-third as much as whipped cream, you will surely want to use it for all your cooking.

Send for the Carnation Cook Book. It's free. Address Carnation Milk Products Co., 100 Carnation Bldg., Oconomowoc, Wis.

Carnation Chocolate Charlotte

1¼ tbsp. gelatine, 2 tbsp. cold water, ⅓ cup sugar, 1½ cups Carnation Milk, ½ cup water, 1 square bitter chocolate, ½ tsp. vanilla, ½ dozen lady fingers. Soak granulated gelatine in 2 tbsp. cold water 5 minutes. Melt shaved chocolate in double boiler, add sugar, ½ cup water and ½ cup Carnation. Let cook 5 minutes or until smooth; pour over gelatine and stir until dissolved. When cool, add vanilla. Whip cup Carnation which has been chilled for a couple of hours, gradually add chocolate and gelatine mixture and stir until it begins to thicken. When well thickened pour carefully into mold which has been lined with lady fingers. Chill for hour or more. Turn out, cover with whipped Carnation and garnish with maraschino cherries or nuts.

Carnation Macaroon Dessert

1¼ tbsp. gelatine, ¼ cup water, 9 macaroons, crumbled, 1¼ cups Carnation Milk, 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tsp. vanilla. Soak gelatine 5 minutes in ¼ cup water mixed with ¼ cup Carnation. Scald ½ cup Carnation diluted with ½ cup water; pour over slightly beaten egg yolks to which the sugar has been added; cook in double boiler until mixture thickens slightly (about 3 minutes); pour over gelatine and stir until dissolved. When cool, add vanilla. Whip 1 cup Carnation which has been chilled for a couple of hours, gradually add gelatine mixture and stir until it begins to thicken. Add crumbled macaroons and pour into mold. Chill for hour or more. Serves 5.

Rich for Desserts

Carnation Milk is doubly rich in cream. It makes the most delicious desserts. It is dependable, too. Pure, whole milk, sterilized for safekeeping. You'll find it more convenient, more economical than milk in any other form.

red peppers, 8 green peppers, 1 teaspoon salt. Let stand one hour. Stir vigorously 5 minutes.

Cream Dressing—Mix ¼ tablespoon salt, ½ tablespoon mustard, ¾ tablespoon sugar, 1 egg slightly beaten, 2½ tablespoons melted butter and ¾ cup cream. Add ¼ cup vinegar slowly. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Strain and cool.

Thousand Island Dressing—To one and a half cups of mayonnaise, add one tablespoon chopped green peppers, half tablespoon chopped pimentos, one teaspoon chopped olives and two tablespoons tomato catsup. Stir in well.

Italian Salad Dressing—Put a small lump of ice in bowl. Rub bowl with a clove of garlic. Put in one tablespoon tomato catsup, six drops tobasco sauce, one-quarter teaspoon mustard, pepper and salt and one tablespoon vinegar. Stir well. Add one-half cup olive oil slowly. Stir until it thickens a little. Remove ice and pour dressing over salad.

CURRIED EGGS—This is particularly timely when you have cooked rice left over. Boil five eggs hard and chop the whites. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, and in this saute one teaspoon of finely chopped onion, stir in two tablespoons of flour and one and one-half cups white stock or milk. When the sauce begins to thicken, stir in one and one-half teaspoons curry powder, season with salt, pepper and paprika, let come to a boil and pour over the whole yolks of eggs which have been arranged on small round beds of rice. The sauce is so hot that the rice need not be heated at all, or just slightly warmed.

EGGS WITH CHEESE—Beat an egg in half a cup of milk. Remove crusts from slices of bread, dip in the egg and milk and saute in butter. Heap scrambled eggs on the French toast, sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and serve at once.

CREAM SOUPS—A thin cream sauce made by blending one tablespoon of butter and one tablespoon of flour, with one cup of milk seasoned with salt and pepper and added to one cup of any left-over vegetable put through a sieve is a very good luncheon dish for children.

MUSHROOM SAUCE—Drain and rinse one can of mushrooms. Finely chop half of them. Cook five minutes with ¼ cup butter and ½ teaspoon lemon juice. Drain, brown the butter slightly and add quarter cup of sifted flour, then, when well browned, add two cups of well-seasoned brown stock (or 2 bouillon cubes dissolved in 2 cups of boiling water.) Cook 10 minutes, stirring until smooth and creamy. Add mushrooms and cook two minutes and season to taste with salt and pepper.

PINEAPPLE PARFAIT—One can crushed pineapple, 4 egg yolks, 8 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon gelatin, 1 tablespoon cold water, 1 pint heavy cream. Empty the pineapple into a sieve to drain, catching the juice in a bowl. Beat the egg yolk until very light. Add the sugar and mix with ¾ cup of the pineapple juice. Stir over the fire until the mixture becomes thick as cream. Remove from heat and add the gelatin, which has soaked for five minutes in the cold water. Stir until gelatin is thoroughly dissolved. Add the crushed, drained pineapple. Chill until the consistency of whipped cream. Beat the cream until stiff and fold into the pineapple mixture. Freeze, without stirring, and serve in parfait glasses.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

MIXED GRILL

SOME men are born liars, some acquire the art of lying, and some have lying thrust upon them by suspicious wives, weak wives or curious wives.

* * *

A married man's manners in company are usually more charming and polished than a bachelor's—probably because they get so little wear and tear around the home.

HELEN ROWLAND

A woman can usually spot a big, black lie; it's all the little pink and blue pastel ones a man tells that confuse her.

Many a hard-working girl's smart business clothes are bought with blood money—the blood she loses by substituting a chocolate soda for a roast beef sandwich at lunch.

* * *

Marriage is the "commencement exercise" at which we take out diplomas in the school of love; thereafter, like the college graduate, we begin to learn how little we know about it all.

LAMENT OF A POPULAR NOVELIST.

I'm tired of writing erotic
And trivial nonsense like this;
For love is to me a narcotic,
And marriage a dubious bliss.

I'm tired of youth and its phrases
As a subject of endless dissent;
Of sex and its mazes and crazes—
But, darling, I must pay the rent!

I'm tired of flappers and petting;
I'm sick of original sin—
But why all this fussing and fretting
As long as the dollars roll in?

There are times when I'd like to defy it
And write what I know is the truth;
But heavens, the public won't buy it!
They only want books about YOUTH!

I am weary of each variation
On the subject of life!. But, my sweet,
It's either write THIS—or starvation!
And Lord knows a writer must EAT!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, July 14

ACCORDING to the astral testimonies this day may be one of depression and stubborn obstacles to the making of much progress. However, the energies will be given high stimulus by the position of Mars and this may assist over the difficult places and small perplexities. Those in the employment of others are under favorable rule for recognition or preferment from superiors.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which there may be set-backs and obstructions to be overcome, but they should receive stimulus to surmount these things. Also if in the employment of others there may be favors or recognition from their employers.

A child born on this day should be endowed with some peculiar gifts, leaning toward diplomacy or subtlety. It may make a success of employment. It should have instilled an outlook of optimism to offset some depressing tendency.

The peace thou seeketh from without is only found within.—CARY.

Jellied Fish

Mix one and one-half cups of any well-seasoned cold flaked, freshly cooked fish with two tablespoonfuls of chopped green peppers or capers, add a little onion juice if desired, a little salt and a dash of mace. Soak one tablespoonful gelatine in one-fourth cup cold water 10 minutes, dissolve in one cup boiling water, add two tablespoonfuls lemon juice. Put slices of hard boiled eggs in the bottom of a dish or mold, and add the fish and jelly. Chill and remove to platter and garnish with watercress or lettuce. Use any kind of salad dressing or sauce tartare.

APPROVED BY PHYSICIANS
—THAT'S WHY WOMEN BUY 107,000,000 ROLLS

BECAUSE doctors approve them, women are buying more Scott tissues than any other kind.

Scott tissues are made of clean, new fibre so absorbent that they sink in water instantly. Crumple a sheet in your hand. It is soft and cloth-like. With an ordinary glazed tissue you can actually feel the sharp edges.

Every roll of ScotTissue and Waldorf must meet the doctors' requirements for absorbency, softness, purity. For your family's sake never ask for just "toilet paper." Ask for ScotTissue or Waldorf.

THE STRANGE COUNTRY

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

THE Strange Country, ruled by Love, and the Adventure in it! These absorb the world! Half the tales that are told are about them. Fairy-tales. True-life stories. Essays. Glimpses of those strange faces from history that seem never to die, half fictionized. Novelettes and their big brothers. The heroic little newspaper story that is now growing up into the literature class with the other high-brow delicacies. The great editorial seriously concerns itself with the young girl, her love-affairs, her marriage, her adventure into the Strange Country after Love and Happiness.

WORK is the figure that looms big in the present world. He packs a lot of interest and, certainly, huge portions of happiness. But Love, though of softer outline, and a cherubic countenance, is the other statue in the Public Square. And sometimes I think, after all, he is much the most tremendous of the two. We speak of him even more than we do of WORK.

Do not think because the girl of today seems to take a lot of little side trips into the Beautiful Adventure who is the enemy of that other Beautiful Adventure Death that she knows that land. She thinks she does, perhaps. And the world worries about her and wonders if there is anything left of it for her. Do not think it.

Marriage and the life-long adventure of love is a strange island, that you must land upon, and seek upon, and live upon, to know it. For some of us—thank destiny—there is nothing but ultimate beauty and happiness there. For others, there's a sad spot, a place mournful with memories, where the girl adventurer, led by Love, first saw the face that waited for her and was happy for a little while. Then the girl, if she stays upon her island, avoids that spot and tries to forget.

That is why serious-minded fathers worry about the day when their young daughters set sail for the Strange Country of Love and Marriage. Because they know that even the worldly mind of the modern young girl knows nothing at all about it!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Some Vital Needs in Children's Food

TALKING with an eminent nerve specialist the other day I was much impressed by a statement he made. He contends that the majority of nervous conditions in children are due to undernourishment.

DR. COPELAND

Isn't that a shame? Think of this great, rich country and try to imagine that children are actually underfed! It is difficult to believe, isn't it?

As a matter of fact, however, we must not conclude that this doctor had hunger in mind. Underfeeding is not the sole cause of undernourishment. Wrong feeding is just as important a factor.

My experience in the New York City Health Department taught me many things. One of these is that there are almost as many undernourished children in the house of luxury as in the houses of the poor. Pampered indulgence is just as dangerous to health as necessary sacrifice.

The most vital lesson a parent can learn is the necessity for well selected and properly eaten food. No living being can be well and strong without it.

Among the diseases in which undernourishment is one of the casual factors is chorea, or "St. Vitus' Dance." Of course there are other causes, but no matter why the disease comes, its effects are practically the same.

The first sign of this disease is nervousness. This may be noticed by difficulty in using the hands. On this account, writing and drawing are not done as they should be. The weakness may be shown by the embarrassing habit of dropping things. When the legs are involved the child stumbles and falls. He dreads the stairs and may creep down them instead of walking.

The most familiar symptom of St. Vitus' dance is twitching of the face and eyes. The child acts as if he were making faces.

As the trouble progresses, there may be jerking, twitching and spasmodic movements of any or all the muscles. Every effort to control them seems to make the affliction worse. If the child is embarrassed or tired the trouble is aggravated. Indeed, the poor youngster is quiet only when he is asleep.

There seems to be a relationship between chorea and rheumatism. Too hard work in school and a run-down condition from any cause may be followed by an attack.

It is important to guard the child against all the factors which have a tendency to annoy and excite him. The worst of the trouble is likely to disappear in six or eight weeks. In any event, it is probably wise to omit school, where there may be a few unkind children to poke fun at the poor little sufferer.

The health must be built up by proper feeding. The matter of diet is of first imprtance.

To the end that there may be proper nourishment, deep breathing must be taught. No matter how much food is taken, it is not utilized unless sufficient oxygen is supplied to make it available.

An unfortunate thing about chorea is that it may recur occasionally. This is not likely to be the case if the underlying causes for the first attack are removed and then are not permitted to exist again.

Children cannot thrive unless they are guarded and directed exactly as plants and animals are. They should not be left to haphazard chance.

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

Ashamed

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have written you many times and find you an excellent adviser. I have come to you again for help. There is a fellow, 24, whom I met one day when I was just ready to board a street car. He had a car and asked my girl friend and I to ride over with him to the city. We did. He has been a resident in our town for a number of years because I have seen him. One night I was coming down the street. It was raining. He said he would take me home. So I let him. When I was getting out of his car he kissed me several times. I hated to say anything so I left him (I am awfully backward). He asked to take me out sometime. I said maybe which I didn't know. Although I am only 15 I go with several fellows. I am so ashamed of myself I could cry. Did I do right by letting him kiss me? Should I go out with him? Miss Gale, is it really a sin for me for doing such a thing? I amvery sorry I did it, but I know you will understand.

ASHAMED.

You know, of course, that you shouldn't have permitted him to kiss you, but don't be so upset about it, my dear. You have not committed any sin. Promiscuous kissing is cheap and vulgar, and I know you don't want to be either. Don't go out with this man. You are too young to go out with boys at all, much less with a man of his age.

Tidings of Movie Colony Heralded From Hollywood in Gossip About Film Stars and Their Productions

Mayor Jimmy Walker Takes East Side West and Gets Big Hand From Showmen of Movies

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 13.

THE Hollywood lion of the day is Mayor Jimmy Walker, whose presence on the coast refutes the statement thatt "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet." Jimmy has brought the East Side West—and made 'em like it. New York's Mayor made a stirring address to a big crowd of movie publicity men, and although what he said may not have met the approval of their bosses, "the gang" stood up and shouted its cheers when his speech was completed. Jimmy has completely won the hearts of the industry's showmen. Which goes to prove that they can appreciate good showmanship in another when they meet it.

Another matrimonial team is back in Hollywood in the person of Fay Wray and John Monk Saunders, who did an unscheduled elopement while on location recently. And as a wedding present Paramount has decided that Fay will star in her new hubby's story when it is picturized. The title is "Dirigible," and as it indicates, the film will be another "epic" of the air, somewhat on the order of a sequel to "Wings."

Jetta Goudal, who used to be called De Mille's "heroine of temperaments," is credited with as gracious a gesture as has emanated from the self-sufficient film colony in many a moon. Etta doesn't know Eva Von Berne. But just the same when Eva had a birthday—her first in this country—Jetta found it out and sent the newcomer gifts and roses, with a little note saying that Etta remembered her own first lonesome birthday in a strange land, and hoped that her gift would help make Eva feel less an outsider. If this be "temperament" make the most of it!

Lon Young has started shooting in his second Chesterfield production, which, presumably, will be mild but satisfying. Its title is "The House of Shame" and the principal characters will be portrayed by Virginia Brown Faire, Creighton Hale and Lloyd Whitlock. This will be followed by a college yarn, tentatively called "Campus Knights."

Although they daren't use the title, "The Green Hat," for the film version of Mike Arlen's story, I understand there isn't a thing in the wide, wide world to prevent Director Clarence Brown from filming his introductory sequence in color. And if the hat that Greta Garbo wears should happen to be a green hat—well—that would be a coincidence, wouldn't it?

Jack Mulhall's first individual starring picture is titled "Applesauce." Here's hoping it won't be.

All Rod La Rocque's plans were upset when he was rushed to the Pasadena Hospital for an appendix operation. Rod was all set to start for Gotham regarding his tentative stage engagement. But now, although he is reported out of danger, there will have to be an interim for recovery of strength before Vilma Banky's tall, smiling husband will be ready for any histrionic effort. Yes, of course, Vilma is right at the bedside every moment.

It seems very much as though movie producers are becoming finicky about their pictures. United Artists doesn't like Norma Talmadge's film, "The Woman Disputed," and either Sam Taylor or Henry King will be called in to do some re-taking. It is also gossiped that "The Mating Call" isn't so hot, and will be either re-filmed or shelved. And Columbia is reported to have scrapped a picture and its director after three weeks' work. The days of hit and miss—with more misses than hits—are passing.

Remember "Male and Female?" Remember Gloria Swanson, Tom Meighan, Bebe Daniels and Lila Lee in the picture? Well, as you know, the title was the pre-war idea of giving "it" to the boxoffice. The story itself was based upon Sir James Barrie's book, "The Admirable Crichton." That name was rejected because the movie magnates thought the public would read it "Admiral Crichton" and think it was a sea story. No kidding! But anyway, Paramount is going to do the yarn again. And they do say that Richard Dix and Florence Vidor will play the leading roles.

LOCAL SALESMAN FEELS FINE AGAIN

Reports That Ten Herbs Ended Indigestion, Nervousness and Sleeplessness.

"Ten Herbs has made me feel like a different person, and I am sending your medicine to my mother, so it can build up and strengthen her system," was the statement of Mr. J. R. Bailey, 135 Second Avenue, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine to crowds of men and women.

MR. J. R. BAILEY

"Due to my occupation as a traveling salesman, eating my meals at irregular times and in so many different places, I had a very bad case of indigestion," Mr. Bailey continued. "Gas always formed on my stomach after eating, and at times caused my heart to palpitate. I had to be very careful what I ate, as almost every kind of food distressed me. Sometimes I became very nervous, and always had a tired feeling. Due to nervousness, I did not get much rest at night.

"I read about Ten Herbs in several newspapers and decided to try your preparation. Three bottles have proved the merits of your wonderful medicine. I never have any more gas on my stomach, or heart palpitation. My digestion is good, and I do not have to be careful what I eat for fear of being distressed. I can enjoy a good night's sleep and arise feeling fine, as that tired feeling has left me. I do not hesitate to recommend Ten Herbs to my fellow travelers and the general public."

Every day reports are received by the Ten Herbs Man, telling how men and women throughout this section have been relieved of stomach, liver and bowel disorders, by using this successful new compound, Ten Herbs. It also benefits the kidneys and cleanses the entire system.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

Melt Fat Away By Oxygen Method

Reduce Where You Want to Reduce

Infiltrating cream quickly and safely banishes double chins and slenderizes big hips, fat waists, legs or arms.

Nature's way of melting fat away is by bringing oxygen in contact with the fat itself. When you take violent reducing exercises more oxygen is carried in the blood to the fatty tissues. Similarly when you go on a starvation diet, you stop supplying the body with fat building materials, and the oxygen carried in your blood uses up the stored fat.

New Colloidal chemists, working with doctors have found a way to bring double oxygen in contact with fat at any part of the body where you wish to reduce. Colloidal chemistry is one of the latest developments of modern science. They have done away with the old dangerous methods of starvation diets, boiling baths and strenuous exercises and made it possible to localize fat reduction. That is, you can reduce a double chin without affecting any other part of the body, or slenderize fat legs, fat arms or large hips without getting that drawn, wrinkled, haggard look that so often resulted from the old methods.

The new discovery called Viaderma is an infiltrating cream, containing double oxygen, which is liberated when absorbed through the skin and simply melts the fat away. You don't have to take anybody's word for this. You just rub this golden brown cream on the part you want to reduce and actually see it work. It disappears in two minutes' time—absorbed by the skin—leaving just a clean white foam on the surface. This natural method is so quick and safe that it has the approval of doctors who oppose all other methods of quick fat reduction.

Reducing tests made on fat people have produced amazing results. One woman took off 29 pounds in six weeks. Another reduced her neck two inches in a few treatments. Double chins disappeared in three or four days' time, and equally successful results were had in reducing fat waists, arms and legs, and big hips. It is surprising what an amazing improvement it makes in your appearance to take off just a few pounds of excess fat. Fat is ugly and the fat woman never looks her best. Get Viaderma today. At all May's Drug Stores.

Raskob Explains Success: Selection Aids Business.

By B. C. FORBES

JOHN RASKOB, who is managing the Democratic campaign, is totally unlike the cartoonist's picture of the typical "Napoleon of big business." He is not a giant; he is only five feet seven inches. He has not a massive countenance; he has the fine features, rather, of an artist. Instead of being blusterous, his mien is almost diffident, his voice soft and low. His eyes do not pierce you through and through, but radiate kindliness. True, his nose and his chin suggest strength, his shoulders are broad, he looks as if he kept himself in supreme physical trim and, somehow, you get the impression that he is nearer six feet than five and a half.

He is not yet fifty. Like the Democratic standard-bearer whom he has stepped forth to serve, he is an ardent family man; notwithstanding his weighty duties as head of General Motors finance, he contrives to spend many hours at his spacious home near Wilmington with his family of 11 children—there were 12, but the second son met a tragic death in an automobile accident the other day.

IT was Johnnie Raskob's strong convictions which led him when a lad to strike out from the parental home in Lockport, New York. The father, of Alsatian blood, died when Johnnie was 19, and his American-born Irish mother (Moran), sympathized with her son's sturdy ambitions. After serving for a brief period in a law office, Johnnie qualified as a stenographer by taking a business course. The pay, $7.50 a week, was considered ample by others, but not by the ambitious Johnnie.

A chum had moved to Lorain, O., and Johnnie sounded him out as to the prospects there. The reply suggested that he write the head of the local traction company, Pierre S. Du Pont, who needed a secretary. Young Raskob did write, his letter made an impression, and he was engaged at his own valuation, $1,000 a year, a figure which the folks of Lockport regarded as fabulous.

THAT was one turning-point in Raskob's business romance. Another was to come, one that was to lead him quickly to millionairedom and to enable him to play a foremost part in the making of 100 other millionaires.

So valuable did the young secretary prove that within a year he was getting $3,000. When his chief moved to Wilmington, in 1902, to take charge of the family's famous powder works, Raskob was taken along as assistant treasurer. Here he earned a notable reputation. Also, he saved money and developed an aptitude for making fruitful investments.

IT was in 1913 that he induced Pierre Du Pont to buy General Motors shares. He himself had bought a modest amount and was so enthusiastic that he didn't desist until his chief also got aboard. Lo, when the battle came between W. C. Durant and bankers for control, it was discovered that the 3,000 Du Pont-Raskob shares could tip the balance either way.

Both sides agreed to elect Mr. Du Pont as chairman of General Motors, Raskob became a director, and later (early in 1918) he was made chairman of the finance committee.

Today he is ranked among the first half-dozen industrial leaders of America. And it was he who played a foremost part in the organization of a profit-purchasing and profit-sharing plan for General Motors executives which has made a hundred of them millionaires.

IS Raskob puffed up over his record? No, he says.

"I believe there is a divinity that shapes our ends; I am positive it has been so in my case."

NEWS AND VIEWS

Money Tension Relaxed.

Tension on the money market eased shortly after mid-day and call loans, which had opened at 7½ per cent, fell back to 6, comparing the 8 per cent rate in effect at the close of business yesterday. The market reflected the easier condition in a rather general rise which centered in some of the specialties, but also included such issues as Steel, General Electric and Allied Chemical. The early market was decidedly unsettled as a result of the raise in the rediscount rate at New York, but offsetting this was a sizeable drop in brokers' loans which came as quiet a surprise to many people in the Street. The better car loading figures of the previous day and the unexpected increase of 220,000 tons in the Steel Corporation's unfilled orders furnished a background for the confidence which appeared to be cropping out here and there in the market. There was plenty of funds in the call market and "outside" loans were reported in several instances at concessions from the formal stock exchange figures.

New York Bank Rate Raised.

The rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank has been raised to 5 per cent from 4½, the directors at an unusually lengthy meeting suiting their action to that taken Wednesday by directors of the Chicago bank. The 4½ per cent rate had been in effect since May 18, when an increase from 4 per cent was announced in an effort to check bank borrowings and through them the nationwide wave of speculation in the country's security markets. Not since November 3, 1921, however, has the rate been 5 per cent. While the directors of the New York bank were not delayed 10 days or more in obtaining Federal Reserve board approval of the proposed increase, as was the case in Chicago, the meeting yesterday was prolonged nearly until 5 o'clock. The delay in the Chicago bank's case was said to have been due to difficulty in obtaining approval because board members were scattered on vacation or business trips, and the length of yesterday's meeting was understood to have been caused by delay in obtaining Washington's approval over the telephone. The Richmond Federal Reserve Bank also had raised its rediscount rate to 5 per cent, and general expectations now are that the nine other banks will take similar action.

Brokers' Loans Decline.

Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending July 11 amounted to $4,242,699,000, compared with $4,307,076,000 the preceding week. Although loans showed a decrease of nearly $65,000,000 for the week, as compared with an increase of $148,000,000 a week ago, and there have been decreases in preceding weeks, the total remains above $4,000,000,000. Disinclination to reduce the total undoubtedly influenced the increased rate, as the Federal Reserve repeatedly has made it known that a decrease of at least $600,000,000 would be necessary to satisfy the Federal Reserve board that speculation had returned to something like normal volume. A year ago brokers' loans were slightly above $3,000,000,000.

Reserve Ratio Higher.

The Federal Reserve system ratio of reserves on July 11 stood at 67.9 per cent comparing with 65.4 per cent one week before and 78.0 per cent a year previous. Ratio of the New York Federal Reserve Bank for the week was 63.1 per cent against 63.5 a week previous and 83.9 last year.

Week's Gold Export.

Gold exports in the week ended July 11 were $25,620,000, of which $25,332,000 was "earmarked" metal withdrawn by France. Imports of $5,211,000 included $5,000,000 from Canada.

Allis Chalmers Raises Dividend.

The expected increase the Allis Chalmers dividend rate was announced today when directors ordered a quarterly payment of $1.75 instead of the $1.50 heretofore paid. President Falk said that earnings so far this year and the future outlook as evidenced by the satisfactory volume of current bookings and orders on hand, fully warrant the action of the directors in making the larger distribution to the company's stockholders.

Unfilled orders June 30 were $10,138,500 against $9,973,862 on March 31, and $10,013,114 on December 31, 1927.

Marland Deficit Smaller.

The Marland Oil Company will show a deficit of approximately $150,000 for the second quarter after all charges and reserves, including intangible drilling costs, according to preliminary estimates. This will compare with net loss of $1,876,992 in the previous quarter and $2,155,500 for the June quarter of 1927. This will be the smallest deficit reported since the second quarter of 1927, when overproduction in the oil industry became most pronounced.

California Sale Rumor Denied.

E. W. Marland, president of the Marland Oil Company today said: "The report that Marland Oil Company is planning to withdraw from California is entirely without foundation. Marland Oil of California has been a highly successful and profitable subsidiary and we expect to further expand and develop along production lines in California. When we entered California it was with the avowed purpose of engaging in the producing end of the oil business only, as the fields of refining and marketing were very well covered in that state."

Chrysler-Dodge Deposits.

The extended time for deposit of Dodge Bros. securities under the proposed plan of consolidating Chrysler and Dodge expired July 10. Bankers for Dodge have made no announcement as to whether or not the requisite 90 per cent of Dodge shareholders have deposited under the plan and it is assumed a portion of the necessary stock still remains to be deposited. Bankers are re-checking deposits and are conferring as to steps which will be taken should it be found that insufficient stock has been deposited.

Askin Heads Exchange Committee.

The board of directors of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange has appointed a committee on business conduct with J. M. Askin as chairman, and members including C. F. Pugh, W. W. Reynolds, R. S. Dornberger and W. W. Goldsborough.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—No sales were reported in the raw sugar market early today. It was learned that late yesterday a local refiner bought about 25,000 bags of Cuban for July shipment at 4.12c delivered, a new low record price for the year. There was a further buying interest at this level early today, but holders were asking fractionally higher.

The raw sugar futures market opened at advances of 1 to 5 points and at one time was 7 to 10 points above the previous close on buying by houses with Cuban and European connections. The recent action of the market evidently strengthened the technical position and there appeared to be some buying on the theory that a rally was due. Offerings increased on the upturn, however, and reactions of several points followed. At midday prices were still 4 to 6 points above the previous close.

There were no changes in the refined situation. Withdrawals again were of fair proportions, but new business light. Prices were of fair proportions, but new business light. Prices were quoted at 5.85 to 5.90c for fine granulated.

SHARES RALLY AFTER EARLY SLUMP

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, selling off sharply at the opening on the raising of the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate, and then rallying briskly in response to a lowering of call money rates. Trading showed a marked reduction in volume, total sales in the first three hours running around one and one-fourth million shares.

Call money renewed at 7½ per cent and then dropped to 7 as a plentiful supply of funds flowed in from all sections of the country. So great was the supply of loanable funds in the afternoon that loans were arranged in the "outside market" as low as 6½ per cent, and the official rate was lowered to that figure. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

The day's trade news was largely favorable. Reports of lower steel prices from the Chicago district were offset by an increase in four-inch pipe prices. Directors of the Allis Chalmers Company raised the annual dividend from $6 to $7. U. S. Rubber common was heavily bought on rumors of a merger with Goodrich, but these were denied by officials of the latter company. Crude rubber consumption in June broke all records.

Dupont broke 5 points to 363 in the early trading and then rallied to 372. Wright Aeronautical dropped 4½ points to 136 and snapped back to 143¾. Radio fell 4 to 162½ and rebounded to 168⅞. General Motors rallied from an early low of 181⅝ to 187½ and Curtiss Aeroplane from 97¼ to 102¾.

Indian Refining preferred rallied 10 points above yesterday's close, Texas and Pacific 7, National Tea 6 and Case Threshing, Allis Chalmers, General Electric, Davison Chemical, Montgomery-Ward, Allied Chemical and Advance Rumely preferred sold 3 to 5 points higher.

ICE PREFERRED MOVES UP

Business was dull and price movements were without significance in the early session of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. A few scattered trades with no evidence of concentration in any particular stock marked the forenoon's activities.

Joseph Horne common dropped under 40 for the first time in several weeks as a few small lots offered at the market found bidders rather indifferent. Under 40, however, the stock met support which immediately moved it back to that figure. When the issue was first traded in in the open market, following the company's capital reorganization, it sold above 50, but subsequently started on a decline which has carried it to the present levels. Some time ago, however, the street heard that there are large buying orders in the stock at figures slightly under present quotations.

There were no important changes in the fuel group. Lone Star Gas was steady at 53, unchanged, but dealings in the stock were on a comparatively small scale. Arkansas Gas issues were also steady around the levels prevailing on the close yesterday.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass dropped back to 230. The price represents a decline of 10 points from the best level attained when the buying was in progress. Consolidated Ice preferred was the strongest of specialties, moving into new high ground for recent trading. The company's operations are now at the height of the season. Near the close the stock sold at 225¼. American Ice, on the New York exchange, also displayed noticeable strength.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened easy today at a decline of 13 to 19 points under renewed liquidation, combined with local and commission house selling which was evidently based on relatively easy Liverpool cables and private reports of beneficial rains or showers in some parts of Texas.

Trade buying and covering was reported at the decline, but selling continued, and by the end of the first hour the market was 20 to 34 points net lower. October selling off to 21.69c. Business was fairly active and selling was accompanied by talk of improvement in crop conditions, despite the unfavorable features noted in recent weather advices.

Private cables said continental buying in the Liverpool market had been offset by liquidation, but some Liverpool and continental buying was reported on the decline in the local market.

After selling 20 to 25 points net lower on the private reports of rains in West Texas, the market steadied on the forecast for showers in the eastern belt and covering combined with some trade and commission house buying. October sold up from 21.69c to 21.86c. The market at midday was holding steady within 5 to 10 points of yesterday's closing quotations.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

NEVILLE ISLAND will be the site of one of the greatest industrial developments undertaken near this city for several years, if plans now being made are carried through. The project includes the construction of a by-product coke plant, a cement factory and the reconditioning of a blast furnace which has been idle for years.

RECENTLY the Sharpsville Furnace Company purchased the Neville Island blast furnace from the American Steel Wire Company and a tract of 200 acres of ground. The furnace had been under lease to the Carnegie Steel Company, which was not using it because of its isolation from other plants. During the war it had been planned to make the blast furnace a nucleus for a large armor-plate mill but the Armistice made this unnecessary.

THE Mellons are understood to be interested in the Sharpsville Furnace Company. George S. Davison, president of the Gulf Oil Corporation, is also president of the Furnace Company.

ALTHOUGH the operation of merchant blast furnaces has not been profitable lately, the close integration of pig iron production with other activities makes the business attractive. A large by-product coking plant will be built which can secure supplies of coal by river at a low transportation cost. The by-product ovens can be heated by waste blast furnace gas.

IN addition to its production of pig iron the blast furnace will also make slag as a waste product. This can be converted into cement. The fuel for the cement factory will be the gas produced by the by-product ovens. In the winter months the output of by-product gas may be sold to gas companies which are in need of such a supply during their peak season.

THE details of the project have not been entirely worked out. The Sharpsville Furnace Company now has a blast furnace at Sharpsville, Pa. The new plant will give the company a much lower production cost.

THE Neville Island furnace will be the nearest merchant pig iron producer to the city of Pittsburgh. The last merchant furnace within the city was closed down a year ago and it is now being dismantled. There are still blast furnaces owned by steel mills within the city but the past decade has seen a great reduction in their number.

INCREASING values of real estate have made it unsound economically to use city property for an industry requiring as much space as is needed for iron and steel production. Blast furnaces and mills in the city have found it impossible to expand except at great expense and they frequently have been able to dispose of their property at handsome profits.

THIS trend does not mean that Pittsburgh is losing its place of importance in the steel industry. The movement has merely been one from the city itself to more suitable sites in this district. It is an inevitable step in the change from a large mill city to a great commercial and financial center. Mills are being replaced with office buildings.

THE exodus of the mills has been an important factor in making the slogan, "Smoky City," an untrue description of Pittsburgh. Electrification of industry has also contributed. A recent survey showed that the air here is more pure than in many other industrial centers of the country.

A FEW weeks ago the bond houses found their shelves heavily loaded with new issues of securities which had not been sold. A slump in demand followed the break in the stock market. The offering of many new issues was postponed.

Since then the overstocked condition of the bond dealers has been corrected. The large houses have reduced their inventories and only a few of the small dealers are overloaded.

This week has seen a sudden revival in new offerings. Conditions in the bond business have been returned close to normal.

Speculation Both Ways.

One broker says speculative buying of stocks is at low ebb, that 75 per cent of the speculation in the market is on the short side. "If it has been the object to put a damper on speculation," continued the broker, "it has been successful so far as the bull side of the market is concerned, but raising money rates has encouraged a lot of short selling. To get brokers' loans down holders of stocks must be forced to liquidate. But this is no easy matter when one considers that customers are carrying stocks on wider margins than ever before."

Gimbel Brothers.

"The current business outlook for Gimbel Brothers is for improvement," said Isaac Gimbel, chairman of the board, on his departure for Europe. "The active management of Gimbel Brothers," he said, "has been transferred to young men who are making an energetic and successful effort to restore the activities of the company to a more profitable basis. This year should see advantageous changes in the affairs of the company, which should benefit the future earning capacity of Gimbel Brothers. Certainly we should do better this year than in 1927." Mr. Gimbel added there was no particular significance in the recent addition to the board of Julius Rosenwald, whom he described as an unusually able business executive and one whose presence on the board should further the progress of Gimbel Brothers.

Margin Calls.

Considering the extent of the decline on Wednesday, particularly in the industrials, the number of margin calls received by customers of the leading houses before yesterday's opening was comparatively small. Those who did receive demands for strengthening their positions were inclined to liquidate part of their longs. A reason for the new margin calls was the stringent rules adopted by most houses which resulted in keeping customers' accounts in good shape, or at least sufficiently strong to withstand the sharp break of Wednesday. Had sentiment in the district been more optimistic recently, it probably would have resulted in greater public participation on the long side and heavier long liquidation following the initial reaction.

Copper Stocks Favored.

Coppers have displayed more resistance to pressure than other groups. This is due to the fact that the improvement in the red metal industry has been pronounced this year, and has warranted dividend increases by some companies, with others likely to take similar action in the not distant future. Authorities in the trade are optimistic on the outlook for later this year, and are predicting further price advances. This means that earnings of the leading companies in 1928 will show substantial increases over last year.

SKYWARD

By RICHARD E. BYRD.

call Capt. Craven. The call was a failure. The captain couldn't suggest anyone.

Helped by Campbell

Five minutes more and it would be too late. The bill would be up and defeated if something couldn't be done in a hurry. Just then Mr. Campbell came into his office. I didn't know him. I had no right to accost him. But in desperation I got him to give ear to my story and to the need of the Navy for a Bureau of Aeronautics so that aviation could get a fair chance in our military service.

Even while I was talking the Congressman opposed to the bill began to hold forth on the floor.

Suddenly, to my intense joy, Mr. Campbell held out his hand, with, "You're absolutely right, young man! Certainly I'll answer him."

Whereupon he hastened to the floor of the House and, without preparation other than my jumbled words, launched himself upon a speech so eloquent that it not only carried the day of naval aviation but aroused his colleagues in loud applause.

In the Senate we struck another snag. Senator La Follette, the elder, had been persuaded by Gen. Mitchell to offer an amendment that would kill the whole thing. It is very easy for one Senator to kill such a bill. He was ready to propose that the Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics must be an air pilot. On the face of it this was a fine idea. It certainly looked as if the man who would run naval aviation ought to be able to fly.

But none of the admirals, such as we should have to have to head the new bureau, had taken up airplane work yet. They all looked upon flying as a young man's game. The bureau chief could, however, be an airplane observer, and I suggested that substitute.

I went directly to Senator La Follette. I found him to be exactly the strong character I had pictured him. He sat silent as I talked.

"What would you like the bill to say?" he suddenly snapped out at me.

Bill Saved

Though taken aback at this unexpected show of consideration, I replied: "Strike out the part that requires captains of aircraft carriers and tenders to be fliers, sir, and require the chief of bureau of aeronautics only to be an aviation observer."

But I took my troubles to Senator La Follette's son, young Bob, who is now Senator in his father's place. He promptly intervened with his father and won the day for us.

The bill passed the Senate without opposition. The Navy at last had a formal bureau, a complete organization, and one authorized to take care of its aeronautical activities.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett was made the first chief of the bureau. By law his pay was increased 75 per cent for flying. As a result, he was the most affluent officer in the Navy, even counting the vice and full admirals.

Flying stock went up in the Navy Department. With an admiral to fight our battles we began to get things done.

We soon had more money, safer planes, bigger fields, better experimental laboratory and other lesser things that we so vitally needed. Best of all, we had a well informed group of properly accredited officers to present our case to Congress when aviation matters came up.

TOMORROW — Why Gen. William Mitchell lost his fight and was kicked out of the Army.

Recites Old Law In Fight for Freedom

Release of Aron Gillims, Negro, in jail charged with murder, under the provisions of a Pennsylvania law passed nearly 150 years ago, was asked in a petition filed with Judge Elder W. Marshall yesterday in Criminal Court.

Gillims was arrested December 7 and indicted February 28, accused of killing Mitchell Hines, 31, of 102 Beelen street, December 7.

The petition, filed by Attorney John E. Wirtzman, alleged Gillims is illegally detained, as the act of 1785 provides that a prisoner should be released on bail if not arraigned during the first term of court following indictment and provides for his discharge if not arraigned during the second subsequent term. Two court terms have elapsed.

Judge Mrashall fixed July 19 for a hearing.

"I Shall Risk It!"

SYNOPSIS — Deeply in debt, handsome, manly Harry Doncaster accidentally glances at an ad in the paper which asks the gent who picked up chicken's glove at Dragoon's ball to be at the Zoological Gardens next Sunday and learn something to his advantage.

HARRY DONCASTER was like the scorpion girt by financial fire—the circle narrowing with each succeeding sun. This is just what Harry Doncaster is beginning to discover when we find him in the fashionable hotel conning over the advertisement and twirling his tawny mustache. A few muttered words escaped his lips to this effect—

"The item is meant for me—I shall risk it—even though I come to grief on Sunday next."

Sunday Concert Decision Is Victory for Liberty

The quashing of the appeal of the Commonwealth against the decision of the Court of Quarter Sessions of this county that Sunday concerts do not constitute an infraction of the blue law of the state ends an important test case and registers another score on the side of common sense.

In this case the basis of the action was a concert given in May, 1927, by the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, following which a number of members of the organization were fined $25 each by a magistrate. The Court of Quarter Sessions reversed that decision and it was the judgment of the county court which was appealed by the Commonwealth.

The Sun-Telegraph congratulates the members of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra organization for having the courage to go through with this case and upon the victory for all the people which has resulted from their stand in behalf of freedom. The idea that music could be more repugnant to the Lord on Sunday than on any other day is too preposterous to be thinkable in this day and age.

The blue law, so-called, is more of a nuisance than anything else nowadays and should be modified so that other things besides concerts shall not subject their followers to arrest and persecution if indulged on Sunday. As far as the religious atmosphere and spirit of Sunday is concerned it can be and will be preserved without a moldy, old objectionable law that is nothing but a ''busybody'' in its ultimate effect on modern life.

Miracle Surgery

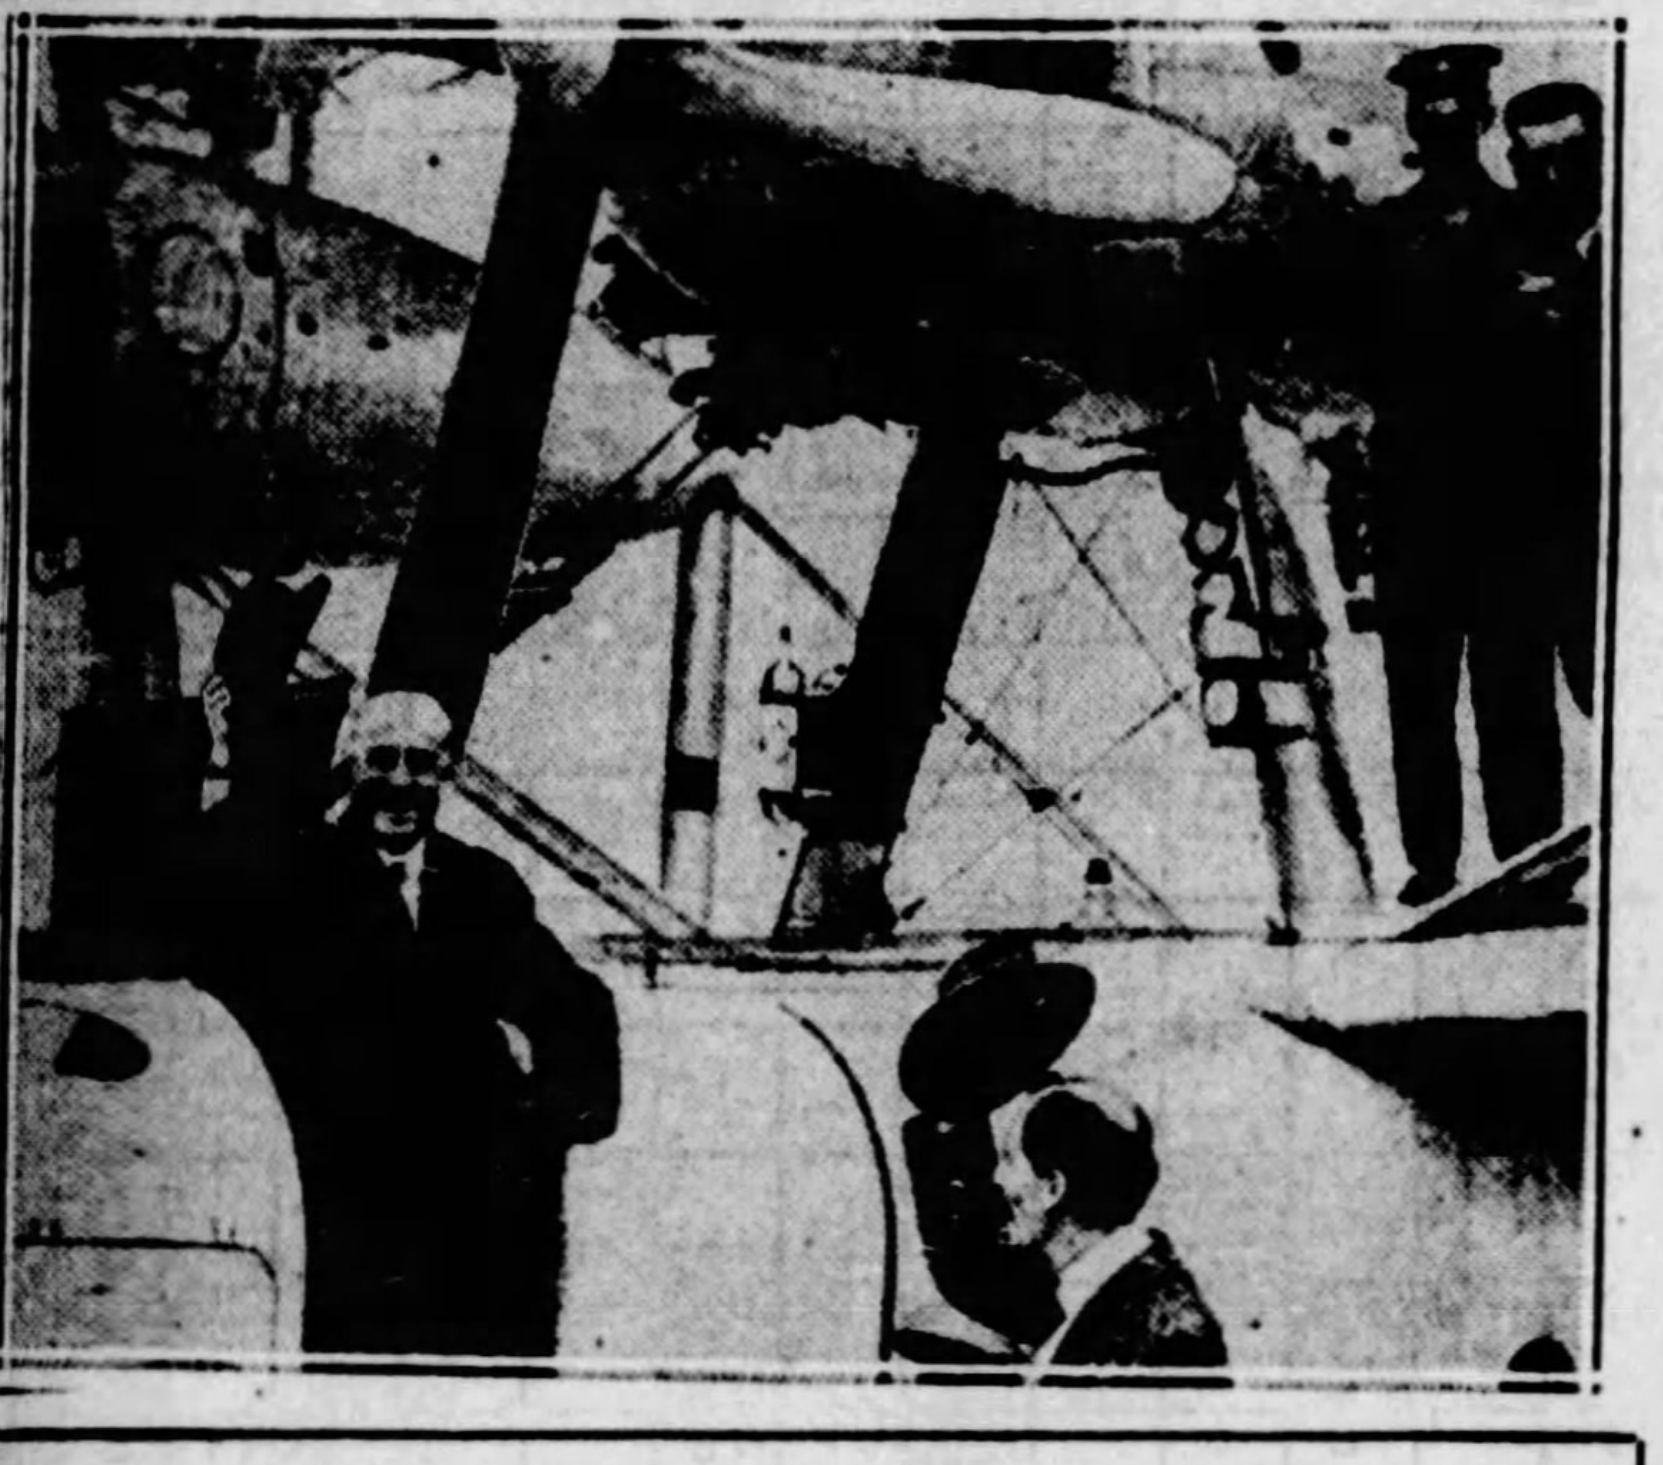
Treating Arthritis.

By an operation, marvelous in its ingenuity and skill, Dr. Fred H. Albee, bone surgeon, has relieved William Ogden Heath, 27 years old, of the crippling effects of arthritis. The knee joints were rebuilt, and calcareous deposits removed from the hip joints, restoring motion to them.

That remarkable operation is unfortunately not one upon which much hope can be built for the great majority of sufferers from arthritis.

Taking Serious Things Seriously

The British Know What Command of the Air Means.



BRITAIN'S SECRETARY FOR AIR DEPARTS.

This picture is recommended to the next President of the United States, whoever he may be. It is also recommended to the attention of President Coolidge, in case he should have time to act on the suggestion between now and the 4th of next March.

This shows Sir Samuel Hoare, Britain's Secretary of State for Air, starting off in his air yacht while friends salute him.

His all-metal yacht, with three powerful engines and a cruising radius of 550 miles, is the boat in which he and his wife, Lady Maude Hoare, recently flew from India to England.

This man smiling so pleasantly is IN CHARGE OF BRITISH AVIATION.

The British don't imitate us in our amazing foolishness. They don't make aviation a mere BRANCH of the navy or a mere BRANCH of the army. They don't allow flying to be subordinated to anything else. They have a Secretary of State FOR AIR, and the business of that Secretary is to put England ahead of other nations in the air, as she has for generations been ahead of other nations ON THE WATER.

Here, certain of our grafters need the money that comes from building battleships and big cannon. And they are able (the Angel Gabriel knows how and others can GUESS) to discourage taking aviation seriously and to continue the building of $50,000,000 battleships that never can be anything better than targets for airplanes.

The United States should imitate Great Britain in this matter, and have ONE man in charge of the greatest air fleet in the world, making it his business to keep that fleet always ahead of other nations.

In case President Coolidge is too busy to get around to it, let us hope that the next President of the United States will realize that to rule the AIR is to rule the LAND and that to be at the mercy of enemy aircraft is to be a nation easily conquered

AIRSHIPS AND SUBMARINES—bigger, faster, better than those of any other nation—THAT should be the United States program.

The Hearst Papers Advocate:

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and to promote the peace of the world.

2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate, no state to have less than two Senators. Legislation to enforce prompt constitutional reapportionment in the House of Representatives.

3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.

4. Federal action to the limit of Federal powers to abolish illiteracy in the United States under a Secretary of Education.

6. Election of Congress in November. Installation on the 1st of January following. Inauguration of the President 1st of January next after November election.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Thoughts while strolling: The black Senegalese doorman with a French accent. Nothing so perky as a freshly bathed white poodle. The smart club room for Chinese waiters—most of them having a proprietory interest in chop suey cafes.

Few seem to patronize New York's health food cafes. Or golf schools. A nut store now every few blocks. Restaurants that open at 5:30 p. m. and close at 6 a. m. The pipe-smoking Englishmen who window shop. Sir Joseph Duveen's temple of art. Where patrons are expected to bring letters of reference. May Allison.

The Rialto swings into summer doldrums. The birdhouse on Forty-ninth street. Boasting actors "at liberty"—klaxoning futile egoisms. Outlanders looking for thrills among the citadels of Coffee Pots, tuneful movie facades and orange drinkeries. Ben Ames Williams, a Jackson, O., boy, who made good in the city.

George Olsen's teeth. George White's thin bow tie. Percy Hammond's apple cheeks. Abe Erlanger's cap. Helen Morgan's hands. Ben Ali Haggin's mustache. Lee Shubert's white vest edging. Irvin Cobb's yellow gloves. Al Woods' "Hello Sweetheart." Louis Mann's minstrel collar.

Lobby idlers in the Astor. Shopping agents for hire. Flesh reducing institutes. The blind beggar who plays mournful tunes on a piccolo. The former professional dancer reputed to have grown rich as a rum runner. Malt and hop stores on Eighth avenue.

Sign: "Elegant table board with radio music." A push cart of oranges upsets and the owner weeps. Poor fellow. Faded women who sit in the grumpy light of hallways. A wrestling studio. Roaming scissors grinders. Fly-blown stationery stores. And pool parlors.

Tenth avenue! Where women wear back combs. A line of stuffy carriages following a hearse. And an entire neighborhood leaning from windows. High sidewalk bootblack chairs. Wan faces on beds pushed to windows. The brackish smell of soapsuds.

A Bronx movie house offers an amusing similie on its program. The line was to read: "This house can be emptied as quick as a flash." But the printer made it "flask." And that's a simile—plenty.

* * *

In a crime that has an underworld stamp the first places to be fine-combed by the police are East Side bath houses. Crooks as a rule prime themselves with drugs or liquor before embarking on their enterprise and when it is over they take advantage of a "sweating out" to have clear heads in case of a police questioning.

* * *

Bath houses hatch many sinister crimes. In the Herman Rosenthal gambling murder, for instance, the plotting was done in a Turkish bath near Brooklyn Bridge. The baths offer a sequestered rendezvous fairly free of dictaphones or eavesdroppers.

* * *

The beauty of cafe cigaret girls has often been remarked from the tragic little Celeste of old Maxim's to the present crop adorning the night clubs. No one seems able to explain the why of cigaret beauties. The majority could grace beauty shows and along Broadway it is likely they might easily become crepe de chine ladies and pursue the easiest way. Yet they do not and flirtatious gentlemen find themselves rebuffed. The cigaret girl seems to prefer working in the atmosphere of garish light and stale cigaret smoke to other and doubtless more profitable callings. She often holds a part daytime job and is able to live off her night club tips—the only salary she receives.

* * *

A New York columnist whose name—if you have ever seen him—is his most comical asset, has been wasting space recently tossing sneers at Bruce Barton and myself. I don't know how Mr. Barton feels, but I happen to be a veteran sneer collector. The first thing I say to Meadows after he has drawn the bath is, "Any sneers this morning?" and if he shakes his head gloomily the day is utterly ruined.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Science From Zion

LAST evening I was reading your article regarding the theory of the flat or round earth. In your last sentence you advise people to think out reasons for themselves or to use their better judgment. After reading your article I have taken exception to several of your statements. They are as follows:

You speak of a man going east around the world and thereby coming to his original starting point. In the first place, east and west are at right angles to the points north and south. In going east you would keep the Polar star always on your left. If a person continued in this direction far enough, wouldn't he finally come back to his original starting position? Try this same thing around a post in your back yard.

Your second statement, about going toward the North Polar star, said it would appear to rise higher in the air as you approached. Did you ever look at any object suspended in the air and as you approach it will appear higher, and at any of these times the whole of this object may be seen through a field glass? The same applies to railroad tracks, which appear to merge in the distance.

Regarding your third statement, in reference to a ship disappearing at sea. Have you ever tried this? I have. With the naked eye, the ship does appear to lower into the water, but after it has all disappeared, excepting the masts, the whole ship can be plainly seen with a telescope.

I am only referring to a few of your statements, but the others can be refuted with very little effort. I am not a student of this subject, but I have tried to use my own judgment and good sense, and I cannot believe that I and all of the people on this earth are whirling around at the tremendous speed and great number of directions that the learned (?) scientists are trying to tell us that we are.

ZION, ILLINOIS.

1. When you walk around a post in your backyard, the post will appear to revolve around the yard at the same angular speed with which you move, keeping opposite to you and passing over in succession the various things that mark the background, such as house, trees, fence, bushes, etc. But when you go eastward around the earth the North Pole star remains fixed among its fellows in the sky, instead of revolving around the whole horizon, and the entire sky remains singularly fixed. This shows that you are not walking around the Pole star as you walk around the post.

2. Have you any conception of how near the Pole star would have to be if it behaved like your "object suspended in the air?" If you go northward one degree, which would be nearly seventy miles, the Pole star would appear to rise one degree higher in the sky. The most elementary knowledge of mathematics suffices to show that, in order that the apparent altitude of the star should thus correspond with the increase of latitude of the observer, the star, instead of being suspended in the air, or situated anywhere near the earth, must be at a distance almost infinite in comparison with the size of the earth. You must go to the North Pole in order to see the North Star over your head.

3. You are certainly deceived with reference to the appearance in a telescope of a ship that has sunk below the horizon all except its masts. I, too, have seen ships in that position, many times, and I assure you that if they are far enough away to be hull down as seen with the naked eye, they will appear hull down through a telescope. A deception may easily arise from the inability of the eye to detect the hull when it is on the horizon. The glass, by magnification, reveals it clearly; but if you continue to watch it with the telescope you will see it sink and disappear, and the masts will slowly sink after it. With a telescope I have more than once seen the masts of a distant ship appearing without the hull, as if stuck up like poles in the sea.

I treat this "flat earth" idea thus seriously because I think it a pity that it should be permitted to mislead the young and the uneducated.

A Thought to the Future

YOU work every day and things are moving along fairly well.

Your future does not trouble you.

Let the future take care of itself, you argue.

If you are willing to take the hard knocks that the future will bring, if you make no provision for the future, then go on your merry way.

Sometime you will regret that you did not arrange some way to carry yourself over the rough spots that come to all men.

A few lives may escape obstacles, but not many.

In fact, so few that the number is negligible.

You will have your critical periods and your sorrows.

Without any protection against these important, often sad, turnstiles in your life, you only add to the suffering you are bound to encounter.

It is fine to be carefree, with no troublesome thoughts of the future.

But when no guard is put up against what is bound to come, the degree of sorrow which may be yours at perhaps a near future date may cause all the happiness of the present to be forgotten.

Self-protection, to say nothing of family protection, is just plain common sense. Where is yours?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

A Message

BELOVED, I know that I have often failed
To reach the goals you would have had me gain,
That ignorance and folly have prevailed
To blur my page with many a blot and stain.

Forget these faults, remembering this alone:
That, as the brightest star may be obscured
Behind dark clouds by fleeting tempest blown,
The wanderer still is of that star assured.

Although I could not reach your high desires,
Dim glimpses of the glories life denied
Kept me aware always of those white fires
And feebler flames left me unsatisfied.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

COURSE, nobody knows how long the girls will keep it up, but the craze for wearing men's clothes has gone pretty far. On some of these hiking trips, and even on the golf links, it's getting impossible to tell when you had better swear and when you hadn't.

Anyway, there was a hiking party in the mountains this summer, and one man says to the individual that was walking along beside him, "Just look at that girl ahead of us with her hair cut short just like ours, and plain men's clothes out and out! Why, I think that's going too far. She looks a fright, and so do all these women that dress like men."

"That's my daughter, and I think she looks all right," says the other one.

"Oh, well, of course, if I'd a-known you were her father—"

"But I ain't. I'm her mother."

And the other fellow didn't have another word to say.

Familiar

A CERTAIN golfer who is so completely absorbed in his pastime that mere domestic matters have long ceased to trouble him has a small son named Geoffrey.

One evening, upon returning from an afternoon spent on the links, his wife remarked during the meal:

"Geoffrey tells me that he has been a very good boy caddying for you on the links all the afternoon, dear."

The golfer looked up from studying his score card.

"Really!" he exclaimed. "Well, now that you mention it, I thought I had seen that boy somewhere before."

Made It Much Easier

THE two new men at the stone quarry had been set the task of smashing an enormous slab of stone. After half an hour of hard work, involving the breakage of two sledge-hammers, the slab remained intact.

The foreman was disgusted.

"Give me that hammer," he said to one of the pair, and with one mighty blow the slab was broken in two.

"There," said the foreman complacently, "that's the idea."

"Oh, yes," agreed the other. "But don't forget that me an' Tommy 'ere 'as been softenin' of it for the last 'arf 'our."

Unprintable

A LECTURER asked the reporter of the local paper who was present at the meeting not to publish any of the statements he had made, as he had two more lectures to give, and he was afraid that such information might spoil the attendance at them.

The reporter was rather annoyed, but agreed to do what the other had asked. But the next day the lecturer was horrified to read in his morning paper:

"Mr. Tootle delivered an excellent lecture in the church, and told some very good stories, but, unfortunately, they cannot be printed."

Quite!

THE new office-girl was trying her very best to be efficient in all things.

When a bothersome traveler called one afternoon, she took his card in to the chief.

"Oh, I can't spare any time for that creature!" declared the great man. "Go and tell him I'm out!"

The girl returned to the traveler.

"I am sorry," she said, "but Mr. Brown says he's out."

"Indeed!" observed the traveler sarcastically. "Well, would you be good enough to present him my compliments and say that I haven't called?"

Isn't It So?

It takes a certain amount of backbone to put up a good front.

The Slow Minded

By DR. FRANK CRANE

If you feel that you have a ''slow'' mind, don't worry about it. Pretty good company exists in that class.

Pierre Curie, the famous discoverer of radium, which is one of the great achievements of the generation in which he lived, used to say to his wife and co-worker, Marie, that he always felt that he possessed a ''slow'' mind.

Charles P. Steinmetz, the electrician, who was called a ''wizard'' because of his genius in mathematical work, said he hated the multiplication table when he was a boy in school because it took him such an extraordinary length of time to master it.

It is a familiar tale that Edison's teacher wondered if he were really bright, and that Grant's mother almost concurred in the acceptance of the popular nickname for her son of "Useless Grant."

Thackeray, the English novelist, once said that he often felt that he "had no head above the ears."

"And Moses said unto the Lord . . . 'I am slow of speech and of a slow tongue.'"

Yet all of these men achieved superlative things.

There are other qualities in character more valuable than nimbleness of wit and the faculty for making immediate decisions.

The mental hares hop about conscious of their sprinting superiority.

Over a short course they have things their own way. But the course of Life is a long one.

An immediate viewpoint gives all advantage to the nimble mind, a long time bird's-eye view reveals the power for perseverance which lies in minds which are thought to be "slow."

"Thou sayest," wrote Marcus Aurelius in his "Meditations," "Men cannot admire the sharpness of thy wit; . . . Be it so. Show these qualities then, which are altogether in thy power—sincerity, gravity, benevolence, frankness, endurance in labor."

The main thing is to acquire the habit of thinking things through.

Do not be satisfied with what some one else has said. See a thing clearly in your own mind.

A man who accustoms himself to relying upon his own mental processes has accomplished a great deal.

He has the kind of independence that men need, independence of intellect. He is not so apt to give way in great crises as the man who forms quick conclusions, but forms them upon the ipse dixit of other people. Don't be alarmed therefore if you feel that you are slow. The main thing is to be thorough and honest.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

SHE looked like a perfectly good woman who never muffed an obligation.

I'll bet she wouldn't wear a torn thing where it didn't show, not even while she worked around the house!

She was having luncheon with a much more lenient soul, with a much softer smile, and nice eyes, who, it seemed from the conversation, was paying the bill.

The guest spoke of Mrs. Barber.

"Such a nice disposition," said the hostess. "I always liked Emma Barber."

"Nice enough outside," said the guest, "but at home she is terribly irritable. She worries her maid till she can't do a thing. She makes her so nervous."

"Is that so? I wouldn't have thought it."

"And my sewing woman says that she never in all her life knew such a fussy woman."

"Well, of course, she is PARTICULAR," said the hostess, charitably.

"I saw Mabel yesterday"—this after a pause—"at the polo games."

"Oh, did you?" said she guest. "How'd she look?"

"She looks well. So much prettier than she was last year when she was thinner."

"I don't think so. Maybe it's her clothes. She wears the worse looking clothes. No taste! Someone should take her in hand, they could make a good looking woman out of Mabel. I think she buys her clothes blindfolded."

A little silence.

"Did you hear that Sarah is going to marry Ben Turner?" said the hostess.

"Yes. What a little fool to throw herself away on him! She is headed straight for trouble," and the guest powdered her nose.

"She's a very capable nice girl," said the hostess, "and I hope she will be happy."

"She has been running wild of late," said the guest, "and her mother is always at bridge parties and not watching her. Why the other night—" (whispers)

"Oh, I think that's exaggerated," pleaded the hostess. "Young people live so differently from what we used to. She's a very nice girl, really."

"Going to the Reed's dinner Friday?" asked the hostess.

"No, I haven't been in their house since last summer."

"Oh, Im sorry—well, let's hurry along and finish our shopping now. Where shall we go next?"

"I don't care. Say did you hear what Mrs. Reed's first husband divorced her for?"

"No," said the irritated hostess, "I didn't know and I don't care."

They didn't go shopping together. They separated at the door.
